CHARTER ELECTION ON SEPT. 27 AUTHORIZED BY CITY COUNCIL

CITIZENS GATHER TO ORGANIZE FOR CHARTER FIGHT

Rousing Meeting Will Be Held in Kimball House This Morning.

SPLENDID ORGANIZATION TO BEGIN WORK AT ONCE

Steps Will be Taken by Enthusiastic Atlantans to Assure Success of Charter Which Will be Taken to Bring About a More Effective Administration of Affairs.

REGISTER NOW.

If you haven't registered for the charter election, do so at once—today. The election will be held on September 27, without a doubt, as the city council has called the election. The registration books will close on September 12, which is Tuesday of next week. Go to the registrar's office and see if your name is on the books. The man who does not register and vote on September 27, fails to do his duty as a citizen of Atlanta.

There will be a meeting of citizens who favor the new charter for Atlanta in the ballroom of the Kimball house this morning at 11 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing the charter campaign.

The meeting will be called to order by Chairman E. E. Pomeroy, and there will be a report from a committee which was appointed at the last meeting to investigate the effect of a clerical error which had been made in the enrollment of the charter bill.

All Doubt Cleared Away.

By its official action Monday afternoon, the city council and aldermanic board adopted resolutions calling for the charter election on September 27, and provided the ways and means for having the election held according to the city ordinances. This means that the last doubt about the election being held has been cleared away, and it means that the fate of the charter is now in the hands of the people of Atlanta.

At the citizens' meeting Tuesday morning the campaign for the charter will, therefore, be launched, and from now until the day of the election will be pushed with vigor and earnestness. All citizens who favor the adoption of a better charter for Atlanta and who desire to take part in the campaign are invited to attend the meeting.

As only about three weeks remain before the day of election, the campaign will be thoroughly organized at once. There will probably be ward committees from each of the ten wards, with a central campaign committee. It is the purpose of those who will have the campaign in charge to work with that zeal and earnestness which carried the bond issue, for they believe that the adoption of a new charter means an epoch in Atlanta's history, which will mark the city's growth, development and prosperity as no other measure has done upon which the people have acted for many years past.

All Urged to Attend.

At the last citizens' meeting at the Kimball, those present enrolled themselves as a nucleus for a campaign committee, and Chairman Pomeroy earnestly requests all those who signed the list to be on hand without fail.

There will be a regular charter campaign headquarters, where there will probably be held daily meetings.

It is being recalled that the campaign for Robert F. Maddox for mayor was first organized in the Kimball house ballroom, and that the first organization for the bond election occurred in the same place. This, it is believed, augurs well for the campaign for a new charter, which will have a more effective administration of the city's affairs.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL FACING WALKOUT OF ITS SHOPMEN

President Markham Flatly Refuses to Consider Demands of Road's Employees.

LETTER OF THE PRESIDENT CONSIDERED ULTIMATUM

President McCreery, Speaking for the Men, Declares Road Officials Are Trying to Force the Issue Prematurely—International Officers Will Take Action Tuesday.

Chicago, September 4.—President Markham, of the Illinois Central Railroad, ended hopes of an immediate settlement of the labor difficulties of the railroad by dictating a letter to W. F. Kramer, secretary of the International Blacksmiths' International Union refusing to meet the representatives of the Federated Shop Employees tomorrow as had been requested.

The letter from the representatives of the nine international unions involved, and to which Mr. Markham's communication was a reply, was considered by labor men here to be in the nature of an ultimatum. The unions asked that Markham meet the employees of the road as represented by the system's federation.

Continuing, the letter warned that unless the conference was granted by 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, September 5, the unions would take nec-

Not a Vote Cast Against Election in Council and Only Two in the Aldermanic Board.

FUTILE EFFORT IS MADE TO DELAY THE ACTION UNTIL WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Members of Council Hold, However, That They Have No Right, Officially to Question the Legality of the Charter, As the Election Had Been Called by Act of Legislature.

The city council yesterday afternoon ordered the charter election on September 27 and the aldermanic board concurred in the action.

This means that the election for the new charter will take place on September 27 without fail and that the campaign is now on.

There was not a vote cast in council against holding the election, but on a motion to postpone action until Wednesday night, the vote stood 13 to 7 against a delay.

Members of council took the position that they had no right officially to question the legality of the charter, as the election had been called by an act of legislature, and all council could do was to provide the ways and means for holding it.

Now Up to the Voters.

It will now be up to the people of Atlanta to say whether or not they want the new charter. There will be three weeks for a campaign and in that time the voters will have ample opportunity to post themselves on the merits of the proposed new system of government for Atlanta if they have not already done so.

The action of council in calling the election came up under a resolution which was introduced by Alderman

LABOR PAGEANT GREATEST EVER SEEN IN ATLANTA

Thousands Crowd Streets Cheer Union Workers on March.

NATIONAL, STATE AND CITY OFFICIALS JOIN IN TRIBUTE

Procession Moves Promptly and Does Not Halt Until Word to Disband Is Given. Floats in Parade Are Most Elaborate Trades Have Ever Shown.

Atlanta workingmen's Labor Day parade yesterday was the largest, most attractive in every detail and most completely successful in its every feature of any of the fourteen street pageants the Atlanta Federation of Trades has ever known.

In the parade there were more different organizations, each with a larger membership and more floats every one perfect, than ever before shown.

Not only did the parade eclipse all its predecessors in point of numbers and in excellence of floats, but its personnel appeared to better advantage than even the general Labor Day committee, which had been working zealously on its creation for three months, had dared hope. There was not in the line of march a short union, a thin section or a straggling division. On the contrary, each component part of the parade showed in its ranks nearly its full membership.

And best of all, there was not a halt in the line of march from the second Chief Marshal Hirsch set it in motion up to the minute the various divisions dropped out at points indicated by the division marshals. It was an uninterrupted, incessant, never-halting line from Erskine fountain on Peachtree until the last phalanx of wage-earners had disappeared from the streets along which they had marched.

Line of March Packed.

From the junction of the two Peachtrees to the junction of Whitehall and Forsyth streets the sidewalks were literally packed with men, women and children, while from the starting point to the end there was not a window or other vantage point of observation not occupied to its utmost capacity. The line of march found itself between two solid banks of noise-making humanity, while that noise was augmented as attractive features of the parade came in sight.

Atlantans who have seen each of the Labor Day parades assert that of yesterday in every way far surpassed any that has gone before it.

Chief Marshal Hirsch, his aides and his division marshals were early at the points of concentration and as the various parts of the different divisions came up they were quickly whirled into positions which had been assigned them. So it was that every feature was ready to move as the clock struck ten.

The carriages for the invited guests had been assembled at the Majestic hotel, where Congressmah Wilson, orator of the day, was resting for a short time after his early arrival in the city, and shortly before the starting hour the committee began seating their invited guests.

Congressman Wilson, Governor Smith and N. H. Kirkpatrick, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, were given the first carriage and it was instantly wheeled in line immediately after the Women's Labor League float, one of the most attractive pictures on wheels in the long procession.

BEATTIE GRILLED BY PROSECUTION

PERTINENT POINTS IN BEATTIE'S TESTIMONY.

God knows I am innocent of the murder of my dear wife.
I did not commission Paul Beattie to buy a shotgun.
My wife suggested taking the spin on the eventful night.
I never made the statement "I wish to God I hadn't done it."
I was with Beulah on Thursday night preceding the homicide.
The expression "With oceans of love" was just gush or taffy.
I was the only eye-witness, and I am confident the jury will believe my story against the circumstantial evidence that has been collected against me.
I have never had any confidential relations with Paul Beattie.
I met Beulah Binford in August, 1907.
My relations with her were broken off in the fall of 1908.
I never for one minute thought I was the father of the child.
I did not have any love for Beulah Binford.
I never spoke a cross word to my wife nor she to me. We always were affectionate, and I don't see how anyone could have been any happier.
When we were married I made a clean breast of my relations with Beulah Binford to my wife.

YOUNG DEFENDANT IS FORCED TO DON BLOOD-DYED COAT

Beattie Calmly Frustrates Attempts of Commonwealth to Trip Him.

MAKES POSITIVE DENIAL OF COUSIN'S TESTIMONY

With Expressionless Face the Prisoner Narrates the Sordid History of His Relations With the Binford Girl, But Contends He Had No Love for Her---Story of the Murder.

Chesterfield Courthouse, Va., September 4.—Through six weary hours in a crowded and stuffy court room, Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife, battled for his life today. Evening shadows alone interrupted a vigorous cross-examination by the commonwealth, Judge Watson ending the ordeal by adjourning court to an earlier hour than usual tomorrow—9:15 a. m.—when Prosecutor L. O. Wendenburg will continue his rapid-fire of questions.

A long figure was young Beattie in the crowd that surrounded him on all sides—even the windows and trees commanding the courtroom being thick with staring faces. And the prisoner sat for hours, his manner cool and collected. Unfolding the sordid details of his relations with Beulah Binford, a 17-year-old girl, for whom the prosecution alleges Beattie killed his bride of a year. But not alone the orgies of the four years before his marriage and those that preceded the tragedy, but the gruesome tale of the attack by the highwayman, the wild ride to the Owen home at a speed of 55 miles an hour, with the lifeless, blood-covered body of his wife in the machine beside him, was given to the jury in all its horrible detail.

Dons Bloody Coat.

The prisoner by request of the prosecution even stood up to full length and donned the blood-stained coat that he wore the night of the murder and attempted to explain why blood had not fleecked certain portions of the garment if his wife had reclined against him in the way he described.

The clothes of the dead woman had been burned just before the arrest of Beattie and as more than once there was occasion to refer to them, Prosecutor Wendenburg exclaimed: "I wish to God we had them here."

It was a day of extreme solemnity in the court room. The accused sat in an arm chair, his head often resting on one hand while with the other he rubbed a knotted handkerchief over his pale and perspiring face. In the

BURGLAR LOOTS WEST END HOME

Daylight Job Yields Thief a Handsome Reward.

Breaks Two Doors and Window in Order To Enter Home of G. N. Ross---West End Burglary About Tenth in Three Months.

A burglar, who broke two doors and a window in effecting his entrance, yesterday stole a number of pieces of handsome jewelry from the home of G. N. Ross, 138 Gordon street. This is one of several bold robberies in West End and about the tenth jewelry robbery in the city in the last three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross were away from home all day and the burglary was discovered late yesterday afternoon, when attention was called to a pile of broken glass near the back hall door. It was then found that the thief had piled boxes to reach a rear window, which he broke open, had burst a door into the back hall and then had broken the hall door. As a precaution for his safety he took down the telephone receiver.

After he had gotten into the house the thief seemed to know just where to look for his loot. Disregarding solid silver, probably as too bulky, he chose only jewelry and took a valuable watch, a ruby brooch, several gold pins and an antique intaglio ring bearing the crest of the Ross family.

"It looks like a professional job to me," said Mr. Ross. "I had a fake diamond ring, which I had found on the street, in the jewel box with those other things, and do you know he passed that over entirely? He knew his business all right."

AVIATOR M'LEOD FATALLY INJURED

In the World of Aviation Death Toll Is Very Heavy.

Chicago, September 4.—Alexander McLeod, 28 years old, of Winnipeg, Canada, a pupil at a Chicago school of aviation, was probably fatally injured today when he fell several hundred feet from an aeroplane at a practice field in West Pullman.

His neck was broken and he suffered internal injuries.

Bond Issue Lost.

Montgomery, Ala., Septemeb r4.—(Special.)—A proposed bond issue of $325,000 to have been used in taking care of the city's indebtedness in the construction of sanitary sewerage and in the building of parks and playgrounds, was defeated by a vote of nearly three to one.

SOLDIER PAWNS FORT SUPPLIES

$2,000 Worth of Booty Recovered by Detectives.

Private Ayers Arrested by Private Beebout, Charged With Larceny---Dental Supplies Taken Covered a Very Wide Field.

Upwards of $2,000 worth of dental supplies and equipment, stolen from Fort McPherson, was found in Decatur street pawn shops yesterday afternoon and last night and Private Ayers, of the hospital corps at the fort, is now under arrest, charged with the theft.

The articles recovered from the pawn shops covered almost everything imaginable in connection with a dentist office. There were a brace of motors, a dentist's engine, forceps, scores of minor fixtures and supplies, and even a typewriter. The articles were scattered in almost every pawn shop in the city, the party pawning them slighting only two or three of Atlanta's "uncles" in his efforts to get rid of Uncle Sam's tooth-plugging apparatus and material.

The disappearance of the supplies and fixtures was discovered Sunday morning by Dr. G. I. Gunckel, who has been on a month's leave of absence. Lieutenant C. R. Bennett, now in command at the fort, took up the matter immediately, and when suspicion pointed to Ayers, who had been acting as Dr. Gunckel's assistant, men were sent to the city to look for Ayers, who was not at the reservation. The aid of the detective department was asked and Chief Lanford and Officers Hewell and Hollingsworth visited seventeen pawnshops.

Practically all day Sunday the search lasted and it was well in the evening when Private Robert E. Beebout, of Company C, located Ayers on Peters street. Ayers, it is said, was considerably averse to going back to the reservation, and it was only when Beebout presented a healthy looking six-shooter as his authority that Ayers consented to make the trip. On his arrival he was placed under guard, where he is now held.

Ayers declines to make any statement about the matter.

GARROS BREAKS ALTITUDE RECORD

French Aviator Ascends 13,943 Feet in an Aeroplane.

Pafame, France, September 4.—Roland G. Garros, the French aviator, today broke the world's record for altitude in an aeroplane. He ascended 4,250 metres (13,943 feet).

BEATTIE'S STORY OF TRAMP IS BORNE OUT BY CYCLISTS

Wilkesbarre, Pa., September 4.—(Special.)—Believing that they saw the mysterious man with the shaggy beard whom the defense claims was the real murderer of Mrs. Henry Beattie, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Miller, touring bicyclists, who left Wilkesbarre for Berwick today, sent the following letter to the attorneys for the defense:

"Wilkesbarre, Pa., September 4.—To Attorneys for Defense in Beattie Case. Dear Sirs: I read in last evening's paper article concerning a scraggly-bearded man whom Henry Beattie claims killed his wife. This man we saw; the description tallies exactly.

"Furthermore, we were first passed by automobilists who told us to beware as the man had stoned them. The marks on the automoible were evidence of this. We were going toward Baltimore and this man was headed toward Pennsylvania. This was on August 12, about 2:30 p. m. We dismounted, fearing him. We were riding heels and noticed him closely.

"I am positive that this is the same man. He was apparently a lunatic with a mania for attacking autoists. The automobile had a Maryland and Pennsylvania license and by advertising for the license holder you could doubtless locate him if needed. You might locate the supposed murderer in southern Pennsylvania by advertising, or possibly Maryland.

"We are riding ten thousand miles for a Toronto club and inclose clippings to guarantee genuineness. It would interrupt our trip, but we would be glad to come if you want us. At any rate hope this information will be of value, as from newspaper accounts we are convinced that Beattie's story about the man is true.

"Send any word to Enterprise, Berwick, Penn. This paper will keep in touch with us and forward word at once. We go on today.

"Yours sincerely,
"HARRY E. MILLER.
"MRS. W. MILLER."

ATLANTA POSTAL SERVICE CONTINUES TO GROW WORSE

Complaints against the mail service the postoffice is giving Atlanta and surrounding territory continue.

Four days for an important prescription to travel as first-class from Charlotte, N. C., to Atlanta seemed bad enough, but two citations of delays coming to The Constitution Monday make that one look like mail service by wireless or aeroplane.

Eighteen days from Toccoa to Atlanta, 93 miles! Physical proof of that is furnished. It came with the following note giving details:

Editor Constitution: I enclose herewith an envelope which contained a very important letter. You will note that it was mailed and post-marked at Toccoa, Ga., August 7 at 3 p. m. It is marked in Atlanta as it received August 25, 9:30 p. m. Just eighteen days to travel 95 miles; isn't that rather slow?

Sent on August 7. Delivered August 25. Distance, Toccoa to Atlanta, 93 miles.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) J. H. TATE.
Toccoa, Ga., September 2, 1911.

Five or six hours or a day's delay in delivering a letter may not be noticed ordinarily. Often it will be overlooked in the case of customary business mail until the house wakes up to the fact that something is affecting receipts.

But a great deal of mail is of vital importance and then delays cause hardship, as for instance in case of letters containing checks for persons away from home or traveling men on the road.

The following note gives the details of such an instance:

Editor Constitution: On August 15, 1911, I sent my wife a letter to Fitzgerald, Ga. She hasn't received it yet. She sent me a letter to Atlanta, due to get here on August 16, with a check for $36 on the First National Bank of Fitzgerald. I called for the letter at the Atlanta postoffice on the 17th, 18th and 19th. I then left the city, but returned and called again on the 24th, 25th and 26th. No letter for me.

I then came to Gainesville and wrote my wife to know what was the matter. I have just received a letter from her saying she sent me the check to Atlanta as stated above. I don't know how to get it, but have reported the matter to the postmaster general for instructions as to how to proceed. This matter is of great importance and also of great damage to me.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) E. F. GODFREY.
Gainesville, Ga., August 28, 1911.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will be held Wednesday for the purpose of considering the delinquencies and delays being inflicted on Atlanta by the postoffice department.

A general investigation may be instituted.

Georgia district; Jerome Jones, of The Atlanta Journal of Labor and Councilman Stoy wer easily to the second carriage.

Attorney Mayson, City Treasurer Peeples, William E. Terry and Gholstin were in the third carriage.

Fitzpatrick, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; Bayless, national organizer of the Paper Hangers of America, and Smith occupied the fourth carriage.

Walter Taylor, city clerk; J. M. Miller, city marshal; Captain R. M. Clayton, city engineer, and E. R. Hayes, city building inspector, were given the fifth carriage.

Walter McElreath, one of Fulton's representatives; W. Z. Smith, superintendent of the Atlanta waterworks; E. Martin, ex-representative from Milton county, and William C. Byers occupied the sixth carriage.

Warden Moyer, of the federal prison; Postmaster McKee, Albert Huber and J. B. Lee were in the seventh carriage.

After the section of carriages came the Atlanta Ad Men's Club in automobiles and the display made by these hustling, never tiring, always noise-making Atlantans added a new feature to Labor Day parades.

Farmers in Procession.

The Farmers' Union, next in line, attracted attention. The first feature of the farmers' display was a wagon loaded with the products of the farm, a number of farmers in working harness riding in the wagon.

The federation float justified the anticipations of the crowd. The allegory was that of a firm juncture between capital and labor. It was the best creation of the kind the federation has yet shown.

The Women's Labor League float, companion piece to the federation float, probably attracted more attention than any other creation in the line. The float had been divided into two sections, the front one showing a garment worker, a woman, at work on her machine under improved conditions, while the rear section presented a sister working at her machine in the sweat shop, against which the garment workers have been so long and so persistently fighting.

The live stock display was a revelation to Atlanta. The live stock men of the city had joined in presenting two floats, one drawn by eight mules and the other by eight horses. Accompanying these two floats were thirty men mounted on excellent horses, every man being a good and graceful rider. There was not a poor horse or mule shown.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen brought out as their float a box car mounted on a motor truck, and following that float was one of the largest gatherings of men in the line of march, every entry being a young, stalwart, easy-moving wage-earner.

Women Workers Greeted.

The United Garment Workers made an attractive picture in a big float drawn by four horses with nearly a dozen carriages trailing the big wagon. The working women were all dressed in white and as that part of the line moved along it was given a warm greeting.

The Sheet Metal Workers were out in force and followed a big car showing that trade hard at work, while immediately behind came a moving blacksmith shop with anvil ringing from the hammer blows by strong, lusty young blacksmiths.

The Allied Printing Trades made a strong bid for more than one of the prizes offered. The pressmen and stereotypers were out in force, while the Atlanta Typographical Union never appeared as strong numerically as it did in the line of march. The typos were all neatly dressed and swung over the streets with a good, easy stride. The feature of the allied trades—in fact it was a feature of the entire line—were three or four carriages containing widely-known printers, some of whom have been at the trade for a half century or more. In one carriage was I. B. Pilgrim, one of the oldest printers in the entire south and who is known by all his old friends as "Uncle Ike;" James Martin, William Dewee and John Zuber. In another carriage were Major L. H. Ellett, M. M. Hill, Colonel Tom Pilling, of Richmond, Va., and W. B. Correll. In another carriage Hon. J. M. Slaton, president of the state senate, rode with Walter C. Henderson, market editor of The Constitution and for years its proof-reader and foreman, and Howard Bass.

Business Houses Display.

Many Atlanta business houses had entered floats typifying various lines of commercial life and in that long string there was not a poor presentation.

The wisdom of the marshals in having various divisions drop out at designated points as the line returned was easily shown. Instead of a bad congestion as heretofore when the line disbanded at the starting point it gradually faded away, leaving the streets free for the resumption of traffic.

It is doubtful if a line of march was ever shown in Atlanta freer from halts, breaks and interruptions than that on yesterday.

At Americus.

Americus, Ga., September 4.—(Special.)—There was no marked observance of Labor day in Americus beyond the closing of banks and postoffice and the suspension of work in several shops. There was no parade here, as upon former occasions of like kind.

PAROLE BOARD MAY MEET TODAY

Men Out Under New System Have Made Excellent Record.

The parole board of the local federal prison is scheduled to hold its regular meeting today, but Chairman Robert V. Ladow has not arrived and it is probable that the board will not sit until the latter part of the week.

There are now on file upwards of 80 applications for parole which will be considered by the board, together with those filed between now and the time the board sits.

The first prisoners were paroled from the local prison on December 22, 1910, and since that time 79 inmates of the prison have been allowed to go free on the condition that they make of themselves good citizens. And in the nine months which have elapsed since the first went out, not one of those released has violated the provisions of his parole.

Both Mr. Ladow and Warden Moyer feel that this is a most excellent record. The law provides that any prisoner who has served one-third of his original sentence and whose record is good may be paroled on the recommendation of the parole board and with the sanction of the attorney-general.

LANGSTON IS ON EDUCATION BOARD

Sylvania School Superintendent Is Appointed to Complete Membership.

Professor J. C. Langston, superintendent of schools in Sylvania, Screven county, is the fourth member of the new board of education. He was appointed yesterday by Governor Smith.

With the appointment of Professor Langston the board of education is now complete, the three other members having been previously announced by Governor Smith. They are Professor T. J. Woofter, of the Normal school at Athens; Professor Jere M. Pound, former state school commissioner, but now head of Gordon institute at Barnesville, and Judge Thomas G. Lawson, of Statesboro.

These four members, with the governor and the state school commissioner, Professor M. L. Brittain, constitute the new board of education as provided for under the bill passed at the last session of the general assembly.

Professor Langston, the last member to be appointed to the board, has been engaged in educational work practically all his life. He is a native Georgian, having been born in Elbert county in 1860. He graduated from Emory college, and for four years was superintendent of schools in Hot Springs, Ark. ## TO EXAMINE COW'S HEAD.

Feared That the Animal May Have Been Mad.

Montgomery, September 4.—(Special) The state Pasteur department has just completed the examination of a cow's brain, the head of the animal having been sent to the institute by Dr. B. G. Copeland, of Birmingham. Dr. Copeland informed the department that the cow had been treated by a farmer, who is a veterinary surgeon, and that the animal died after having acted rather peculiarly. Owing to te fact that the farmer had an abrasion on his hand at the time he treated the animal, he feared that the cow might have had the rabies, and the head was accordingly sent to the Pasteur institute for examination.

A preliminary examination of the cow's brain has been made, but the physicians of the department are not sure that the cow was mad. It will be necessary to innoculate a rabit before any possible verdict can be given.

Crops in Baldwin.

M'CLURE HEADS BIG ASSOCIATION

Leader of Five and Ten-Cent Store Organization Returns Today.

C. W. McClure, one of Atlanta's best known business men, will return to the city today from Niagara Falls, where he attended the convention of the National Association of Five and Ten-Cent Stores, of which he was re-elected president. He visited various northern and middle-western cities after the close of the convention.

C. W. M'CLURE.
Named President of National Association of Five and Ten-Cent Stores.

Mr. McClure was the originator of the association and at the first meeting in Cincinnati last year was chosen the first national head. His re-election is a deserved tribute to his able efforts to upbuild the association. Under his administration it has grown rapidly and this year an important step advocated by him was taken, when the manufacturers and travelers for such stores were admitted to membership, thus bringing them into closer contact with the retailers and greatly increasing the influence of the association.

TAX RATE RAISED FOR GOOD ROADS

Counties of State Alive to Need for Better Highways.

Concrete evidence of the aroused interest in road and school improvement is arriving at the office of the state comptroller-general daily now, as the citation of tax levies made by the counties for this year come in.

Twenty reported Monday, and practically all showed increases in the county tax rate. The highest was 14.50 mills and the lowest 7 mills.

"I recall," said Capt. W. H. Harrison, who has been in touch with the state's taxing system for two decades or more, "that when I first came into this office no county levy of taxes ever exceeded that of the state, which has rarely been above five mills, the present constitutional maximum. From the reports of levies that have come in today, one may doubt if a single rate will be as low as that of the state."

For Roads and Schools.

The increased tax rates of the counties are not due to extravagance, but to an aroused public opinion on the subject of roads and schools.

All but about twenty counties are using their pro rata share of convicts on their public highways. The cost of working them has to be borne by local taxation, which is an added burden. But so imbued have the taxpayers become with the idea of road development that they are kicking on slight increases in the tax rate.

Several counties have taken advantage of the recent act of legislature permitting them to levy a specific road tax of four, instead of two mills. The act in question became operative on the governor's approval and is applicable to this year's levies. It will mean the doubling of the road fund in a large number of counties.

The other principal occasion for increasing the rates is the public schools. Heretofore the county levies could be only for the support of the elementary branches. They can raise taxes now for high schools. This was made possible by a constitutional amendment confirmed last year.

The increases in the county rates not only evidence greater interest in schools and roads, but growing prosperity.

All counties are required to report their total levies to the comptroller-general, but their reports do not show for what purposes they are made.

However, the officials are restricted to levying a rate not more than 50 per cent of that fixed by the state. Increases are made under specials which have to be recommended by grand juries.

Sentence Commuted.

Washington, September 4.—President Taft today commuted the court-martial sentence of dismissal in the case of Lieutenant Robert G. Rutherford, of the Twenty-fourth infantry, to a loss of fifty numbers in rank. Lieutenant Rutherford was tried on charges of financial irregularities at Madison barracks, New York. The disposition of the case by the president will permit the war department to promote a large number of army officers in accordance with the recent extra officers' act. These promotions had been held up by the Rutherford case.

LOCKER CLUB TAX NOW ELIMINATED

But Council Re-enacts Legislation Ordinance Regulating Conduct of the Clubs.

An ordinance, introduced by Councilman Humphrey was adopted by the general council yesterday afternoon, which re-enacts the ordinance regulating locker clubs but omitting the provision for a license of $300. This had to be done to make the law comply with a recent decision of the supreme court.

Council appropriated $500 additional to entertain the American League of Municipalities, a similar amount having already been appropriated.

Charles M. Moon tendered his resignation as a member of the bond commission from the Fifth ward and it was accepted.

The mayor announced that he had appointed Mrs. J. A. Holcombe as a member of the lady board of visitors to the public schools from the Tenth ward.

A resolution calling for a vote on the crematory question in the October primary was adopted. It came from the board of health, which desires to be relieved from the provisions of the bond ordinance which requires that two crematories be built in different sections of the city with the $50,000 bond issue. It is desired to use the entire amount for one crematory.

DOG DAYS PASS WITHOUT SHOWING INCREASE IN RABIES

According to the records of the state board of health, "dog days" have nothing to do with hydrophobia or rabies. That forty-day period of the present year is now closing, but the number of cases treated by the state board shows no appreciable increase over other periods of the year.

"If dog days have any thing to do with hydrophobia, I have never noticed it," declared Dr. Edgar Paulhin, one of the state board physicians, yesterday. "Since the period began this year we have averaged about thirty-five standing cases, which is not greater than we average for other periods, particularly of the summer. The cases we have been getting recently are no more malignant or difficult to cure than any others."

There is an old fallacy that every dog is capable of transmitting the germs of rabies during the forty-day period named for his tribe. It is also believed in wide circles that more of the canine species "go mad" then than during any other time.

Do You Want To Be Cured?

Health, strength and vigor are certainly the rightful heritage and greatest blessing of every man and every man who has lost them even to a limited degree is certainly handicapped in the race for happiness and success. However, when it is remembered that practically all cases of chronic and private diseases peculiar to men are curable when properly treated, it is evident that every sufferer of this class now has information at his command and a cure easily within his reach if he will only seek aid from competent and reliable sources.

No matter whether your condition has resulted from your own folly, vice or ignorance, or whether it has been caused by unavoidable injury or disease, the weight of your affliction is just the same, and it requires a definite knowledge, a line of action that can be depended upon, to cure it.

Years ago we realized that the only medical knowledge worth having is that which does good to human beings and lessens their burden of pain and affliction, and that it is the doctor who possesses a definite working knowledge that he is sure of that is a blessing to his fellow man. By careful study and years of practical experience we have gained this knowledge and are now sure of what we can do. Therefore, our patrons can depend upon it that they will be properly advised and subjected to no experiments, but placed upon thoroughly tried and reliable methods of treatment which will bring about the quickest and best results.

We treat all chronic and private diseases including those of the stomach, bowels, kidneys, bladder, nervous systems, skin and all the special forms of male and female weaknesses.

BORN AT SEA, W. H. WILLIAMS IS BURIED IN THE OCEAN

Born seventy years ago at sea, W. M. Williams, more familiarly known as "Pony" Williams to Atlanta friends, has found his last resting place in the big ocean. News has come to Atlanta of his death on August 20 aboard the liner Olympic and of his burial at sea.

He lived at 63 Angier avenue, and is well known to the older residents of the city. During the last years of his life in Atlanta he was special agent for the Georgia Railway and Electric Company.

About a month ago he secured a leave of absence, and in the hope of recuperating in health, started for the Russian frontier, where he thought to find some baths that would effect a cure of his ailment. Death, however, interrupted the journey after health. His wife was with him at the time.

Little is known of Mr. Williams' personal history except that he was born at sea of English parents. He came to Atlanta soon after the war, and after marrying a Miss Berger, of Poland, established his home at 63 Angier avenue.

He has many friends who will be sincerely grieved at the news of his death, which reached the city through a letter from Mrs. Williams to the electric company.

Mrs. Williams is now in London, but will return, it is understood, to Atlanta at an early date.

MAYRE TO PLAN LA GRANGE HALL

Atlanta Architect Will Design Large Combination Building for City.

LaGrange, Ga., September 4.—Special.)—At a meeting of the committee of twenty-five in charge of the preliminary arrangements for the building of a combination city hall and auditorium for this city, P. Thornton Marye, of Atlanta, Ga., was selected as the architect to devise plans and specifications and superintend the new building. It has been agreed that the architect be given power to draw up tentative plans for the combination building and submit same to the committee of twenty-five in the near future.

Several sites were suggested, but none of these suggested was decided upon. The site to be chosen will later be recommended by the options committee. Money for the new proposition will probably be raised by bond election, as the committee of twenty-five has made such a recommendation, and will present same to the city council when plans and specifications are ready for perusal by that body.

It is the purpose of the committee to build a city hall which will accommodate the needs of the city for at least twenty-five years to come, while the auditorium end of the building will be built to accommodate 2,000 people, having a stage which will carry any of the shows played in the big houses of the larger cities. The movement from the start has received the backing of the chamber of commerce. The project, when completed, will also house the offices of the chamber and a show room for use to put on display products of Troup county and the city of LaGrange.

J. O. HALL IS BADLY INJURED BY FALL

Is Violently Thrown to Pavement and Collar Bone Is Broken.

James O. Hall, electrician of the Western Electric Company, was thrown violently from his motorcycle to the pavement on Peachtree street, near Fifteenth street, yesterday, and received several painful bruises and a broken collar bone.

The accident occurred about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and was a result of the slippery surface of the thoroughfare after the heavy morning rains. The wheels of the machine were caught in the car track, and in an attempt to extricate himself from these rails the motorcycle gave a sudden lurch, throwing Mr. Hall on his back.

A passing automobile carried Mr. Hall to his residence at 46 East Mitchell street, where he received medical attention. He is a brother-in-law of Joseph E. McCord.

F. H. HILL LEAVES WEST POINT ROAD

L. J. Mobley Is Appointed Secretary and Treasurer to Succeed Him.

Frank H. Hill, for a number of years secretary and treasurer of the Atlanta and West Point railroad, has severed his connection with this road, and L. J. Mabry, a traveling auditor, has been appointed to fill the vacancy temporarily.

Ill health is given as the reason for Mr. Hill's resignation, which was unexpected.

Mr. Hill tendered his resignation several years ago, and it was accepted at the time by President Charles A. Wickersham.

In spite of the fact that there was no effort made to keep the matter a secret, however it has just come out. Mr. Hill is at his home in College Park seriously ill, and has not been at his office for several days.

The audit of the books of the treasurer and secretary has been in progress for several days. Mr. Hill assisted the auditors in the work until his indisposition put him in bed. The auditors will complete their work within the next few days, it is understood, at which time Mr. Mabry will be in a position more easily to acquaint himself with the duties of his new office.

The announcement of Mr. Hill's resignation is the occasion of considerable surprise among local railroad men who had come to look upon the secretary-treasurer as one of the road's fixtures.

Mr. Hill came to Atlanta twelve years ago from LaGrange, Ga., where he had represented the West Point for a number of years. He was chosen secretary and treasurer of the road before his removal here. Since coming to Atlanta he has made a wide circle of friends and business acquaintances.

Directors of the Atlanta and West Point will hold a meeting at an early date, at which time the vacancy made by Mr. Hill's resignation will be filled.

BLACK MURDERS TWO AND MAKES ESCAPE

Negro Shoots Lee Davis and Tom Ivey, of Morro, Alabama.

Selma, Ala., September 4.—Tom Moton, a negro, shot and killed Lee Davis and Tom Ivey, farmers, early today in a quarrel over a debt of Moton's. Moton was arrested, but escaped, running away with a chain about his neck.

The shooting took place at Morro, near Selma. It is said the negro owed a small sum of money to Mrs. Davis and that her husband, accompanied by Ivey, went to Moton's house to discuss a settlement. A dispute followed and Moton, seizing a shotgun, fired two loads of buckshot at the men. Davis died instantly, shot through the heart. Ivey succumbed later to his wounds, the shot entering his stomach.

Keene Under Knife.

London, September 4.—James R. Keene, the American financier, was successfull operated on for stomach trouble yesterday. The patient rallied well, according to a statement issued by his physicians, and his condition today is encouraging.

H. O. Wills Dead.

Bath, England, September 4.—H. O. Wills, who was largely instrumental in the formation of the Imperial Tobacco Company (of Great Britain and Ireland) Limited, the so-called "Tobacco Trust," died here today.

SOUTH'S BREEDERS WILL GET PREMIUMS AT POULTRY SHOW

Secretary T. M. Poole has announced that between September 15 and 20 the premium lists for the big show of the Southern International Poultry Association to be held at the Auditorium December 11-16, inclusive, will be announced in full.

Mr. Poole and members of the executive committee of the association are anxious that the public realize that there will be many and valuable prizes for southern birds, owned and bred by the exhibitors.

"On account of the large number of eastern and western breeders," said Mr. Poole, "who will enter their birds in the big show, many southerners have an idea that there will be no chance for their chickens.

"This is primarily an educational exhibit for the benefit of the poultry industry particularly in the south. In a number of events the entrance list will be open to all, but in many others the class will be limited to birds owned and bred by fanciers in the southern states.

"This is to give everybody a chance, and to encourage particularly the breeding of fine stock birds in the south. Many entrants to the show have recently sent to some of the larger eastern poultry farms for birds, especially for the purpose of exhibiting them in this show. These imported birds, of course, will be entered in the same class with the big eastern exhibitors who are coming here. Prizes in these classes, which will be open to all, will, of course, be extremely valuable. Prizes just as valuable, however, will be offered in the restricted classes, where the birds entered must be owned by southern fanciers.

T. R. Murphey and othtr members of the executive committee lay particular stress upon the educational feature of the coming show, and that is one of the several reasons why the premium lists have been so arranged as to give the southern breeder particularly good chances of gaining some of the handsome and valuable prizes.

Mr. Murphey declares that he and other members of the committee have received a number of letters from fanciers all over the country commending the decisions of the committee to place the entrance fee to the big show at the nominal sum of 10 cents. This admission shows in itself that the show is primarily an educational exhibit, and not a money-making venture.

Especial interest has been manifested in the coming announcement of the complete premium list as over $3,000 in cash prizes, in addition to fifty handsome silver cups and other special prizes will be given. The prizes are by far the most valuable ever offered at any poultry show in the south.

GENEVIEVE DE FORREST ANSWERS FINAL CALL.

Chicago, September 4.—After a ten-day sleep, from which physicians were unable to arouse her, Josephine Gerbel, known on the stage as Genevieve De Forrest, died yesterday.

For three years the singer had suffered from ulcer of the stomach.

Ten days ago, while suffering much pain, Miss De Forrest fell into a deep slumber. At first this was thought by physicians to be a good sign. Hour after hour passed, however, and she continued to sleep. Efforts were made by nurses to awaken her. Physicians were called, but every effort proved futile.

Killed for Alleged Insult.

New Orleans, La., September 4.—John Traub, aged 26, a car inspector, was shot through the forehead and killed last night by Frank Hock, aged 30, a saddler. The killing was the result of a remark at which Mrs. Hock took exception, according to the police.

Candidates shouldn't run to "beat the band," as political audiences are always near the band wagon.

Champ Clark sees the biggest democratic come-back in 1912, and he seems to know just who will win the nomination.

The Rockefeller idea is that life is too short to quarrel about it, the idea being to "scoop" the quarrelling man and "merge" him.

Of course, they are going to let the presidential office "seek the man," but it never has to go far, with the man camping on its doorstep.

The Washington Post says Mr. Roosevelt can always dig up an interesting line of copy by interviewing himself. Evidently the reporters do not find him so interesting now.

NOW FOR THE NEW CHARTER ON SEPTEMBER 27.

Atlanta is to be congratulated upon the fact that technicalities have been waived and that council has called the charter election for September 27, the date provided by the law of the state.

In response to The Constitution's appeal to their patriotism as made editorially, both Sunday and Monday, several of the opponents of the new charter in council reached an understanding by which they agreed to withdraw objection to submitting the charter to the people to be voted on by a "yes" or "no" vote, and strictly on its merits.

This was the very best thing to do—best for the opponents as well as for the advocates of the new charter.

It brings the issue to a focus at once and the most fortunate feature of it all is that the election is to be held within just one day more than three weeks—giving every man who has a right to vote the time to qualify by registration.

The great mass of the people have already made up their minds one way or another on the principle involved in the charter campaign. They know just what evils are to be overcome and one side believes the charter offers the remedy, while those who believe that the charter will not meet the requirements of the situation know the ground for their opposition to it.

Probably not one vote in ten will be changed between now and the date of the election through lack of understanding, but even if there is one in ten who is not fully acquainted with the merits of the issue involved, he will have abundant time in which to become so.

The truth is, a campaign longer than three weeks would be both unnecessary and injurious to the city.

As it is, we will have a good-natured little fight right here all among ourselves and it will be short enough to permit everybody to be happy after it is over.

In the meantime—have you registered?

STONE-AGE MAIL SERVICE.

Toccoa, Ga., is ninety-three miles from Atlanta, three hours' ride by the average passenger train on slow schedule.

Elsewhere The Constitution produces documentary evidence that it required eighteen days for a letter to negotiate the distance.

There can be no doubt about the facts. The post-mark is reproduced in fac-simile. The letter was mailed at Toccoa August 7, 3 p. m. The "back stamp" or receiving stamp in Atlanta is August 25, 9:30 p. m. To clinch the case, the addressee testifies he received the letter on the morning of the 26th.

This is a specimen of the mail service the "piddling parsimony" and ingrowing inefficiency of the postoffice department is giving Atlanta and the territory contiguous. The letter is not a freak instance. There are plenty more like it. It is a common occurrence not only for through mails to be held up for days on end, but in north, east, south and west Georgia, letters mailed for intrastate delivery are often delayed for a week or ten days.

Mr. Tate, who sent the letter, says it was an important one. How many firms in Atlanta have lost business by the sidetracking of letters containing orders or other correspondence?

The old-fashioned stage coach would have delivered this letter within three days. A man walking could have delivered it in about four and one-half days.

The business men of Atlanta will continue to be given worse than stage coach and pedestrian mail service until they concertedly demand that their postal facilities be put back upon a twentieth century basis.

THE SOUTH'S DEBT OF PREPAREDNESS.

President F. J. Paxon, on his return from a recent visit to the financial centers of the east, said to The Constitution:

Financiers of the north are intensely interested in the commercial and agricultural development of the south. I found that commercial paper of the south is selling much more freely than commercial paper of the west. This shows that they realize the truth of the contention that we have long made in this section, that the trend of the nation's growth is no longer westward, but southward. Several expressed the firm conviction that the south had reached the eve of an awakening that will far surpass anything ever experienced in this country.

In comprehensible language, things are coming the south's way. We have served our apprenticeship. We have gone down into the valley, and our residence there was long and painful. We are now on the upward slopes, as witness the prosperity that has been section-wide during the past five or six years. While other sections, not excluding the wonderful west, are trimming and paring, these processes have only vaguely touched that great territory south of the Potomac.

The nation realizes that the genius of development is shifting to the southern states. Financiers and builders in every line of endeavor scan reports from the section as never in the history of the country. Within the next decade, people and capital will flow here in a volume yet unestimated.

Does not this coming destiny mean that the south should set each portion of her house in order? In every line of modern progress, we have gone forward swiftly, it is true, but there is yet much to be done.

In each state, laws touching upon public health and hygiene should be made more intelligent, and enforced more systematically, whether in city or country. The fading menace of mob violence should be dealt with even more firmly. The pistol-toter should be evicted.

Archaic statutes which hamper business should be amended. Statutes which do not afford sufficient protection to the people—such, for example, as the insurance and banking laws of Georgia—should be given a twentieth century remolding. Demagoguery should be repressed, statesmanship encouraged. Toleration should banish the last faint trace of insularity, and the thought of the section given its final twist into channels that are truly national.

No southerner, no southern business interest, no southern politician, can longer afford to think, act or plan save in terms that embrace the whole country and the years that are coming, and the increase of the years, as well as the day in which we live.

That is the inner meaning and obligation of the scepter of power that is surely drifting southward. No man who fails to realize the fact is in tune with the new and broader creeds that influence our times.

A CHANCE FOR REAL BENIFICENCE.

A communication of unusual appeal is that which appears in another column from Dr. E. A. Tigner, of Milledgeville, in which he urges the establishment of a concert band at the state sanitarium. He shows that already a volunteer band has organized among the staff and employees, and that between $1,500 and $2,000 will equip it with instructors and provide a competent conductor.

The people of Georgia could contribute to no philanthropy more genuine or productive of more substantial results than to speedily subscribe a sum sufficient to materialize the project. As Dr. Tigner states, the effects of music upon nervous or insane patients has been proven of the happiest description. In many cases it conduces to a permanent cure. In the overwhelming majority, it brings at least temporary surcease from a life characterized by monotony, isolation and painful introspection—to put it mildly.

The amount required is trivial to the people of Georgia, negligible in comparison with the good its expenditure would accomplish. There should be no difficulty in making it up without delay.

LABOR DAY IN ATLANTA.

The most cursory study of the Labor day celebration in Atlanta yesterday brought conviction as to the instrumental role labor plays, and has played, in the industries and development of the city.

Yesterday's celebration was the fifteenth successive one of its kind. Each one has witnessed a gradual increase in the ranks of labor, a growing diversity of pursuits, and a finer personnel in the membership of the various unions.

It is a matter of pride, moreover, that in all movements making for the uplift of the city, the hosts of labor have been found discharging that high function of citizenship which is one of the best assets of any community.

In no city of its size in the country is the man who toils a more dependable factor in upbuilding than in Atlanta. As citizen, tax payer, worker, property owner, he is a virile constituent of the "Atlanta spirit."

"JUST FROM GEORGIA"

"The Fire's Out."

I.

We plot and plan—great deeds to do—
Waste time in dream and doubt;
Yet, ere we know, comes winter's snow:—
The fire's out!

II.

We'll reach the mountain top, where beams
Fame's star—where thunders shout;
A cry comes thrilling through our dreams:—
The fire's out!

III.

Too late to change the course—too late
To turn the ship about;
On the bleak shore that glooms before,
The fire's out!

IV.

An' yet, when this strange life is past,
'Twould solve full many a doubt
Could we but hear that cry at last:—
"The fire's out!"

Genius and the Steam Heater.

"I rented this room 'way up here in the garret," said the Unknown Genius, "because it has a wide fireplace where I can burn wood. You see, I've been living in a house with a steam heater."

"Yes; didn't you enjoy it?"

"Not at all! No inspiration in it. I stared that heater out of all countenance night after night, but couldn't get a soulable thought out of it; And if a poem happened to ask for utterance the heater killed it immediately with its eternal 'thump! thump! thump!' You see you can look into a wood fire and get something out of it, but the steamheater is strictly business, and if it knows anything at all, it keeps it to itself. It's the most unsociable, uninspiring invention of this horribly practical age. I've cut its acquaintance forever!"

The Estimate in Billville.

Perhaps, one of the funniest rhymes which has floated in from the Billville precinct this long time, is the following:

I.

"Why should I grieve—being all out o' law
With the testified word of a mother-in-law?
If a man, at a supper, should take but a nip
Next day it's his mother-in-law takes him a trip.

II.

"And she doesn't say much; but that 'man's on the spot,'
And what she don't say he say he interprets a lot!
And what he don't know of, she's singin' a song
Till a blue-coated Town Marshal—he comes a long!

III.

"Has the man any refuge? Will he treat him fair—
At the court of the Town Marshal he shall repair;
And what shall he say when they rabble—they jaw—
Against the wild words of his mother-in-law?"

The only trouble with our rhyming brother is that he rhymes "law" twice. If you get "law" once you're getting your share.

Love and Money.

I.

Love is mo' than money
All de worl' aroun',
But money—I'l honey—
Hit kivers lots er groun'!

II.

Love make the heavens look sunny—
Light de plain en hill,
But w'en you done wid money
Hit's Love dat's sweetes' still!"

The old times were good times, but thank the Lord we've lived to see the new!

Talk about poetry being "dead."—The Whitsett Courier man says he sold three copies of his latest volume "in one week!"

The Great Sweet Time.

I.

Love time, my dearie,
And all the world gone wrong,
But love time makes May time,
And heaven and earth a song!

II.

Love time, my dearie,
And life a dream of this.
Your arms in a necklace,
Your lips in a kiss!

TRIES TO SAVE PICTURE AND IS STRUCK BY AUTO

Mattie Lovett, a negro, was going home last night, carrying her most cherished possession, a crayon portrait of herself framed amid much gilt and red plush. The picture was handled with care and occupied all of Mattie's attention as she started to board a Fort McPherson car at Whitehall and McDaniel streets.

Just about that time the automobile of Joseph O. Smith, a real estate man of 50 Beecher street, was coming along. Mattie got flustrated. She started to make one wild dash toward the car, then decided she wouldn't, wherefore she and the auto collided.

Just as the machine struck her the woman stretched out her arms in an effort to save the picture. It was smashed by the street car, while the woman was knocked senseless by the automobile. She was sent to the Grady hospital by Officer Eberhart, and as the ambulance drove off somebody shouted, "Fix the picture, Doc, and she'll come 'round all right."

J. T. M'NINCH FUNERAL TO TAKE PLACE TODAY

J. T. McNinch, of 441 Georgia avenue, died at a private sanitarium Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. He had been ill for some time, but had not been confined to his bed until his condition called for an operation.

He had been a resident of Atlanta for many years, was a well-known Mason and Odd Fellow. For a number of years he has been engaged in the tinning business, located at 207 Marietta street. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence. The W. L. Luckie lodge of Masons and the Atlanta Odd Fellows No. 14, I. O. O. F., will have charge. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

Mr. McNinch is survived by his wife, one son, J. L. McNinch; one daughter, Miss Jessie McNinch; two brothers, W. W. and Syl McNinch, and two sisters, Mrs. J. B. Smith and Mrs. Della Wolpert, all residents of Atlanta.

VOLUNTARY SUBSCRIPTIONS WANTED FOR STATE SANITARIUM MUSIC

Editor Constitution: A movement has been inaugurated by Drs. Little and Walker, members of the medical staff of the state sanitarium, to organize a band at that institution. This very worthy movement has the indorsement and support of Superintendent Jones and the entire list of officers and employees at the sanitarium, who all recognize the great benefit and pleasure that the 3,500 patients would get from a good band of music at the sanitarium.

Some wise man has said, "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast, to soften rocks and bend the knotted tree." Most large hospitals of this character are provided with funds that give concerts from time to time that are greatly enjoyed, leaving a happy, cheerful effect upon the inmates.

Medical authorities are full of accounts where music has proven a great blessing to people so afflicted and in some instances music has been given the credit of being a large factor in producing a complete recovery. There is a great dearth of music around Georgia's big hospital for the insane. In a recent issue of The Macon Telegraph there is an appeal from one of the patients for donations of phonograph records. In the life of the patients at the sanitarium there are many dull, monotonous hours; days and hours so full of the want of variety that it would seem as if such unvaried sameness of life would tend to produce more of atrophy, melancholy and despair.

This is one of the sad, almost unendurable features of hospital life and there are many out of the large number of patients at Georgia's sanitarium who are doomed because of their chronic afflictions to spend the remainder of their lives there. These people are well cared for as far as necessities are concerned, having comfortable quarters, good food, skilled medical attention and careful custodian care, but they crave diversion and entertainment and nothing will do more to relieve this need than a well organized band of musicians on the grounds that will give musical entertainments two or three times a week.

An effort in this direction has been begun and there has been enough of volunteers from among the medical staff and employees at the sanitarium to make up a band of twenty pieces. It will cost $1,500 or $2,000 to equip this band and employ an instructor. Surely there are enough people in Georgia inclined to charitable actions to encourage this movement and provide the funds sufficient to establish this band. It will be a veritable God-send—something that will bring moments of joy and cheer to many hearts that are often sad and desolate.

In this connection the writer recalls a simple little charity done for the children at this institution that bore good fruit and which possibly has never been mentioned in public print. Some six or eight years ago a social society of young women in Meriwether county wno were given to doing at times some small charities and home mission work made a dozen or two of nice rag dolls and sent them as a Christmas present to the feeble-minded children at the sanitarium. This idea was suggested to this society by one of its members who had visited the sanitarium and, while there, had been shown through the children's wards. On that visit she saw many children playing with a few tattered and broken dolls. Mrs. Darnell, the good woman who has been matron there for many years, said that this was the first donation of this character that she remembered, and that when the dolls were distributed that she never saw a happier scene than the delight given to these poor children by these rag dolls which gave them a great deal of pleasure for a long time, and that little donation of those Meriwether county girls has made other people in Georgia think of these children and now at every Christmastide she receives boxes and trunks filled with dolls and toys for them.

What these dolls and toys have done for these children a band will do in a large measure for the great mass of inmates at this institution.

(DR.) ED. A. TIGNER.

FIRST WARD LOSES CREMATORY BUT IT STAYS ON OLD SITE

The old crematory on Rhodes street is to be moved.

This news was greeted joyfully by the people of the first ward, as the crematory is located in that ward, and there has long been a desire to have it placed somewhere else.

The plan to move the crematory was originated by Councilman James R. Nutting. Mr. Nutting said that he was perfectly willing to have the crematory in the sixth ward, which he represented. He made known his plan to the alderman and councilmen of the first ward, and they accepted his scheme with no little gratitude.

"Knowing that the people of the first ward," said Councilman Nutting, "had long felt that their ward should not be burdened with the crematory, I have devised a plan whereby the crematory can be moved out of the first ward into the sixth. I fully appreciate the fact that the sixth ward has not such public discomforts as the crematory, the stockade, the jail, the pesthouse, the police station and the dumping ground. I, therefore, think it but right and fair that the sixth ward should take the crematory. My plan is to have the ward lines so changed as to make the sixth ward include the site on which the crematory is now located, so when the ward lines are changed the crematory will be no longer in the first, but in the sixth ward. This plan, I feel, will be a great relief to the first ward, as hereafter it can proudly boast that it no longer has a crematory."

Councilman Nutting will probably introduce a resolution in council calling for a change of the ward lines, as he proposed, and he says that when the crematory is thus moved out of the first ward, the people of that ward should give a grand barbecue in honor of the event.

The representatives in council from the first ward, it is said, are contemplating presenting Mr. Nutting with a medal.

Police Washerwoman.

The police had a sort of family affair for the acting recorder to settle Monday morning, when Nellie Lyle, a negro washerwoman, was arraigned on the charge of being intoxicated while at the police station.

Nellie is the official washerwoman for the police barracks. Nellie's daughter got into trouble and was locked up Saturday night, and when the official police washerwoman called to see about her daughter, she was on a merry Saturday night jag, and so full of near beer that she was locked up to keep company with her daughter.

When Nellie was arraigned Monday morning before Acting Recorder Jim Maddox, Mrs. Bohnefeld, the police matron, appeared and made a plea in behalf of the official washerwoman of the police department. The matron said that Nellie was a good negro woman, and had been faithful and efficient in the discharge of her official duties.

Nellie pleaded guilty to having taken aboard too much near beer, and begged the court to forgive and pardon her.

The acting recorder gave the official police washerwoman a severe lecture on the evils of intemperance, and told her that if she did not shun the near beer bottle she would surely get in the suds. He told her that he would dismiss the case, as the police had made so warm an appeal for her.

Nellie curtsied to the court and promised to "stick to the tub."

DEKALB COUNTY WILL HOLD FIRST ANNUAL FAIR OCT. 10

DeKalb county will hold its first annual fair in Decatur October 10 to 14, inclusive.

The fair will be held under the auspices of the Farmers' Union of DeKalb county and is being actively pushed by the mayor and council and the board of trade of Decatur.

There will be an elaborate agricultural display, with a woman's department showing the products of the various branches of feminine industry, along with an extensive display of live stock, poultry, farm implements and other exhibits of interest.

On October 10, the first day of the fair, there will be a big Sunday school rally. October 11 will be state day, and on that date Governor Hoke Smith and other notables will deliver addresses. October 12 will be homecoming day. October 13 will be secret order day and October 14 will be devoted to a show by the Boys' Corn Club and a general educational rally.

The DeKalb Farmers' Union has appointed the following committee to aid in making preparations for the fair: E. C. Childress, president; R. F. Smith, secretary; A. N. Talley, R. F. Hunter, A. R. Rosser and Charles O. Smith.

The board of trade has appointed the following committee to co-operate: C. D. McKinney, W. J. Dabney and G. C. Scott.

The Farmers' Union has already contributed $500 for the fair and the promoters urge all business men of DeKalb county and those of Atlanta, who are interested in the success of the fair to contribute funds or offer primiums and otherwise aid in making it one of the greatest fairs ever held in the state.

It is planned to have an exhibit of some kind from Agnes Scott college and there will be music both morning and evening. There will also be a good moving picture in full blast all the time, while a wild west show and an old plantation show will furnish plenty of amusement.

Among those who have agreed to furnish exhibits are the following: The International Harvester Company, the Southern Bell Telephone Company, the banks of DeKalb county, the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, the Georgia Cotton Oil Company, the Stone Mountain Granite Company, the Lithonia Granite Company and numerous others.

WHY NOT ALLOW TIPPING IF BOOKIES RUN IN CITY?

"You let the bookies run here and I didn't see why I couldn't do a little tipping business on the side," said Felix Elson, racing tout from Jacksonville, in police court yesterday, which logic Acting Recorder Maddox was unable to answer.

He said that there were plenty of men betting here through the bookmakers, and nothing was ever done by the police. He came to Atlanta when racing went under in Jacksonville and thought if bookmaking was going on to such an extent he could do a little tipping business on the side.

Elson was fine $25 and costs, which was remitted and the case held open against him.

RAID AMERICUS TIGER.

Pull Dick Frazier's Place and Arrest Dick.

Americus, Ga., September 4.—(Special.)—Officers in a raid upon Dick Frazier's place on Cotton avenue seized twenty-four bottles of liquor and arrested Frazier, who gave bond in the sum of $600. This is the second time Frazier's place has been pulled, although he went free upon the first charge.

LABOR DAY IS OBSERVED AT THE FEDERAL PRISON

Labor Day at the federal prison was observed to the extent that all the inmates of the institution were excused from work, but the entertainment which is usually provided for the prisoners on holidays was postponed to some day later in the week.

It was the original plan to have something in the shape of a theatrical performance for the prisoners during the morning, but it was ascertained that there would be more difficulty in getting the performers on Labor Day than almost any other and for this reason this feature of the celebration was postponed. It is probable that the entertainment will be given on Thursday when the prisoners will be given a half holiday in honor of the occasion.

He Lost His Keys.—City Marshal William M. Fuller says he has lost his official bunch of keys, and he will be very much pleased if the finder will return them to him. He thinks he lost them on the streets while he was watching the Labor day parade.

Charter Amendment Granted.—The secretary of state granted amendments to the charter of the Elberton and Eastern Railway Company yesterday in the following particulars: Reducing the capital stock from $500,000 to $200,000; changing the western terminus from Lincolnton to Amity, both in Lincoln county.

Chairman Mason Recovers.—Chairman Carlos Mason, of the board of police commissioners, was out yesterday afternoon for the first time since he was attacked with typhoid fever. Mr. Mason was able to take a short car ride, after which he returned to St. Joseph's infirmary. Fortunately his attack was only a light form of the fever, but it will be some weeks yet before he regains his full strength.

Negro Pickpocket Captured.—J. H. Hallman, foreman of the repair department of the H. M. Ashe Company, had a thrilling encounter with a negro pickpocket who he detected in the act of extracting valuables from some one during the Labor day parade on Monday morning. Mr. Hallman's prowess was severely tried, as the negro struggled desperately, but he held the miscreant until an officer relieved him of his charge. Mr. Hallman escaped injury with the exception of a sprained arm.

Christianity and Race Question.—At the meeting of the Ministers' Evangelical association, held yesterday at noon at the Y. M. C. A., ex-Governor W. J. Northen read a very strong paper on "Christianity and the Race Problem in Georgia."

At the conclusion of the address the ministers unanimously indorsed the paper, which many said was the finest discussion of the topic that they had ever heard. The meeting Monday was the first session of the fall, but no business of importance was transacted other than the reading of ex-Governor Northen's excellent paper.

Postal Savings Bank for Atlanta.—According to information from Washington, Atlanta is soon to have a postal savings bank at the post office here. Macon, Savannah and other Georgia cities have already been designated as postal bank depositories, and the government expects to handle a good many thousands of dollars that are now stored away in secret hiding places.

Also, Georgia itself may derive funds from the money thus deposited, as it is possible that the state may place a tax upon the postal savings bank funds, the attorney-general of New York having recently rendered a decision to the effect that states may tax such deposits.

Telegrams from Washington state that Postmaster-General Hitchcock expects to issue a general order before the close of September naming all first class post office as a postal savings bank.

TOUR COMMITTEE TO MEET SEPT. 19

Chairman Henry A. Tarver, of the executive committee for the tour around Georgia to take in the big automobile races at Savannah, yesterday called a meeting of the committee to be held in Atlanta, Tuesday morning, September 19.

This will be perhaps the most important meeting the committee will hold, for included in the business it will have to transact will be definite determination as to the route through the southern section of the state, formulation of rules to govern the tour, announcement of prizes and preparation of entry blanks.

The members of the committee are Henry A. Tarvey, Albany, chairman; Frank G. Coker, Dublin, treasurer; Fred Lewis, Atlanta, secretary; Ed M. McKenzie, Montezuma; Arthur W. Solomon, Savannah; A. N. Tumlin, Cave Spring, and F. L. Dyar, Calhoun. On account of the importance of the business which will have to be transacted at this meeting, it is expected every member of the committee will be present.

Will Be $3,500 in Prizes.

While the amount which the committee will have at its disposal is not yet definitely known, it is pretty certain that the prizes to be offered will aggregate $3,500.

Of this amount The Constitution has subscribed $1,000, the city of Dublin $500, and other cities and towns on the route have given nearly $2,000 more.

The expenses of the tour outside of the prizes offered will amount to not more than a few hundred dollars. One of these expenses will be the payment of ferriage across the Alatamaha, near Baxley, amounting to $1 per car, for which the committee will arrange as was done last year. There is one toll bridge to be crossed, and the only other expense will be the printing of entry blanks, rules and guide books.

The work of investigating the route in which the big Thomas Flyer was used to such good advantage, has been done entirely at the expense of The Constitution.

Rules and Other Matters.

The rules governing the tour will, as was the case last year, be of the simplest sort. The chief thing will be to start on time and get there within the time limit.

Plans are being made to make the road so that with road signs and the guide books which will be supplied all tourists, there will be no difficulty whatever in finding the way.

Just as soon after the meeting of the executive committee on September 19 as it is possible to get them printed, entry blanks will be distributed all over the state and supplied, along with copies of the rules, wherever they are desired. There is already a great demand for them, but it is impossible to get them ready before that time. They will then be furnished fully two months in advance of the beginning of the tour.

EAST POINT CITIZENS URGE MORE ROAD WORK

At a called meeting of the East Point board of trade last night a committee was appointed to appear before the county commissioners at their next meeting, Wednesday, September 6, to urge the claims of East Point for road improvement and to insist upon the immediate execution of the program of road work which has so long been passed up for road and street improvemen in that section. The committee was also instructed to seek the co-operation of the local press.

The meeting was largely attended, and much enthusiasm was manifested. The particular road work in which the citizens of East Point are especially interested is the improvement of the Newnan road from Chattahoochee avenue to the county line, a distance of about 3 miles, and Forrest avenue to Washington street, a distance of about a mile.

DECEIVED BY GRIPSACK OFFICER MAKES ARREST

Deceived by a small gripsack and the slow, meditative walk of the owner, a special officer at Lakewood last night arrested a highly respected Baptist minister as a traveling blind tiger. When taken to the police station the "prisoner" explained that he was Rev. A. H. Latimer, of Murray county, and no case was entered against him.

Mr. Latimer reached the city yesterday late, and thought he would like a short walk in the country after his dusty trip. He took the car to Lakewood and was leisurely enjoying the cool when he was "pinched." The officer explained that he had been suspicious of the small handbag, which in fact contained only a few toilet articles and a Bible.

Mr. Latimer is well known in Atlanta, where he had a charge for a number of years. He now has a son living in College Park and two married daughters in the city.

BROWN ENTRANCE IS EXPECTED NOW

Line-Up Indistinct Until Former Governor Makes Decision,

If He Announces It Is Probable There Will Be No Further Entrants and Race for Gubernatorial Chair Will Be Three-Cornered.

The gubernatorial situation awaits the decision of former Governor Joseph M. Brown as to whether he shall enter the contest for the unexpired term to be left by Governor Hoke Smith.

This opinion is gained from expressions made by numerous well-known men and politicians in Atlanta yesterday from all sections of the state. Some were Brown and others anti-Brown men; but all agreed that there will be no live campaigning, no crystalizing of forces and line-ups until it is known whether Governor Brown shall accede to the demands being made upon him to enter the race.

Practically all predicted that if Brown does run—and his close friends are certain that he will—that there will be no further entrants. If he does not enter there may be several other candidates—in all probability two more, at least.

Three-Cornered Affair.

With the former governor in the race, it will be a three-cornered affair, with Judge Russell and Pope Brown holding down the other corners.

Governor Smith has not signified his preferences regarding a successor. If there be no other candidates, except the Pulaski man, the former governor and Russell, he will side with his old lieutenant, but no one knows with what degree of activity he will support his friend.

However, if Joseph M. Brown does not enter the race, there is likely to be another entrant from the Smith faction of state politics. Rumor has it that one will be either Attorney General Thomas S. Felder or Railroad Commissioner C. Murphey Candler. Neither of the latter will say that he will be a candidate. One of them is known to be considering the proposition of running.

Mr. Felder says that he is not a candidate, but declines to go so far as to declare he will be none.

Nothing to Say Yet.

Mr. Candler has nothing to say—just yet.

Meantime, Judge Russell is making the welkin ring with his customary campaign activity. He is making prohibition the key-note of his speeches, and his friends say that his local option plank has struck a popular chord.

Many local optionists so far have declined to line up with the judge. The "whisky people" as a political factotum have taken no stand. Neither have the prohibitionists as an organization shown their hand.

Both sides are awaiting developments.

The "development" which will set the pace and guage the line-up will be the entrance, or failure to enter, of former Governor Joseph M. Brown.

Judge Russell was in far south Georgia, at Camilla in Mitchell county, Monday speech-making. He will speak in Reidsville Tuesday and at Buchanon on the 6th.

He will be in Atlanta Thursday and for the remainder of the week attending the opening of the fall term of the court of appeals. But this delay will not be a long one. He has an engagement to speak at Dallas on the 11th and at Elberton on the 12th.

J. Pope Brown was in the city Monday, but resumes his speech-making tour of the state Tuesday, filling an appointment at Calhoun. He will speak at Camilla on the 15th; at Moultrie on the 16th; Springfield on the 18th, and Montezuma on October 4.

Joseph M. Brown has not been in Atlanta during the past week or ten days, and it is unlikely that he will have anything to say regarding the pending contest for the next ten days or two weeks.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL OVER JOSEPH D. BOYD

Griffin, Ga., Septembe r1.—(Special.) Funeral services over the body of Hon. Joseph D. Boyd, editor of The News and Sun, who died late Saturday night, were held at the First Baptist church this morning at 10:30 o'clock, and were largely attended by the scores of friends, the large auditorium being filled to overflowing, and several hundred people standing on the outside of the church. The services were brief, but appropriate and impressive. Rev. J. E. Sammons, pastor of the church, officiated, and paid loving and fitting tribute to the memory of the deceased, while Rev. George Hendree Harrison read the ceremony of the Episcopal church. The floral offerings were abundant. The Elks attended the services in a body, as did the members of the police force, who were closely associated with Mr. Boyd as recorder of the criminal court.

CONGRESSMAN WILSON LAUDS WORK OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Congressman Wilson, of Pennsylvania, Atlanta's labor day orator, was greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience of ladies and gentlemen last night at the Wesley Memorial tabernacle.

For more than an hour he held the closest attention of his audience as he talked of trades unionism, industrial education for the masses and of the McNamara case now exciting the attention of the organized labor world.

On the stage besides the orator there were Governor Hoke Smith, N. H. Kirkpatrick, president of the Atlanta Federation of Labor; Jerome Jones, editor of The Atlanta Journal of Labor; James L. Mayson, city attorney; Hon. William Schley Howard, member of congress from the fifth district, and Rev. Dr. Schaefer, of the Lutheran church.

Mr. Jones acted as master of ceremonies, introducing Dr. Schafer who invoked the divine plessing.

Governor Smith Speaks.

Then Mr. Jones introduced Governor Smith as the first speaker of the evening. The governor declared himself a firm believer in organized labor and said that no one had the right to deny workingmen the right or privilege to band themselves together with a view to advancing their own interest. He spoke in the highest terms of the character of the organized workingmen of the state generally and of Atlanta particularly. He declared that if the bill creating a commissioner of labor in the state had left the appointment to him, as governor, he had determined to draw about him the leading and recognized laboring men of the state and to secure from them the name of the man best fitted for that position and then to have appointed that man. As it was he announced his determination to vote for and to work for the man put out for the position by labor leaders he had learned to know and to trust. The governor declared that unionism was better not only for the wageearner, but for the employer. In conclusion the governor introduced Congressman Wilson, paying the distinguished visitor a high compliment as he did so.

Congressman Wilson was given a rousing welcome by his audience. Stating that he had swung the pick and shovel for years and that he knew what it was to be a wagearner, the speaker declared that he still considered himself a wage-earner even though he represented a Pennsylvania district in congress.

"For," said he, "I was sent there by my constituents to look out for their interests and I'm doing my best to execute that commission. That, I think, makes me still a wage-earner if I do my duty."

Have Right to Organize.

Congressman Wilson upheld the right of workingmen to organize as long as that organization was for the good of its members.

"And when you show me an organization that has for its object the good of its own members I'll show you an organization that has at heart the good of the rest of mankind."

The speaker declared that the time when the laborer could deal individually with the employer or the reverse had long gone by. He said that by unionism better conditions had been obtained not only for the workingman, but for the man for whom the work was being done. By unionism, he asserted the employer was given a better class of workingmen and received better and more satisfactory results in every way. Through organized labor he declared that better conditions at home and in the shop had been obtained and that a wider field of education had resulted. He declared that no country in the world had a better system of free schools than the United States, but found objection to the system as it now stands.

"When a boy," said he, "goes through the grammar schools, the next step in our educational plan as it now obtains leads him on to a professional life. To continue school means only that line."

It was then that he appealed for a broader system if industrial education. After the grammar school he wanted the high school for the boy or girl who essayed an industrial life as well as for those who desired a professional life.

Better Conditions Obtain.

He declared that the better conditions now obtaining in the mines and factories were due to the work of unions and said that it was equally true in the recent legislation prohibiting children from working in mines, mills and factories.

As he came to the close of his address Congressman Wilson took up the McNamara case and declared unqualifiedly that he did not believe the McNamara brothers guilty of the destruction of The Los Angeles Times building charged to them. He asserted that all the workingman asked for was a fair trial for these men.

"If they are guilty," said Mr. Wilson, "no one wants them punished more than I and the balance of the organized workingmen of this country. But I don't believe they are guilty and there are hundreds of others who agree with me."

Congressman Wilson's address made a deep impression upon his hearers as was shown by the demonstration as he resumed his seat.

Calls for "Howard" brought the congressman to the front of the stage, but Mr. Howard declared it was too late to keep the assembly longer. He could not resist the temptation, however, to tell of the great kindness Mr. Wilson had shown him when he first reached Washington as the representative from this district.

THEATERS

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

It's a short time between laughs at the Forsyth theater this week. You get through chuckling at one act, to beg'n again, as soon as the performers in the next spasm slide out from the wings.

Sometimes it's a hearty laugh; now and then a smile; more often a healthy chuckle, with the feminine giggle always there. In fact, it's not good form to hold a solemn face while the performers are doing their best to smooth out the frowns, cure the heartaches and bring cheer to everyone.

The first laugh comes in the opening act, when the Grazers have been doing a little dancing and some instrumental work. The cute and fetching young dancer, who has been displaying considerable lingerie, suddenly pulls off a wig and turns into a man.

Then, Nevins and Irwood proceed to punish the eardrums and the floor at the same time, with some laughable nonsense, and vigorous dancing. The "coal man" has stuttering eyes, a stammering mouth and feet of the sort that can keep still very long at a time.

George B. Reno and Company, the vaudeville sideshow, combines many most ludicrous features. Barnum & Bailey have overlooked a bet. No use for these people to act, all they have to do is to look. Their stage presence is excruciatingly funny, but in addition to their looks, they are fair comedians, and their act is a scream.

Kate Watson, comedienne, of the whispering voice and comedy figure, makes good by being able to tell a funny story, and keep a straight face at the same time.

Stuart Barnes could hardly fail to "get over" with the material he has ready to spring on an unsuspecting public, but Barnes is an artist as well, and the combination keeps them on the stage long enough to earn his money. He has a few words to say about matrimony and the relative burdens of men and women, and manages to even them up so beautifully by knocking both that there is no hard feeling about it.

Chevalier DeLoris does his fancy shooting in a way that catches the attention of most of his audience. His headline feat is that of shooting the clothes off his lady assistant. About four shots are enough to separate her from a cloak and a dress, after which she hurriedly visits the wing.

George Harcourt and Company present a sketch, "The Littlest Girl." Their work is overdone, and the lines offer small opportunity.

Emma Bunting.
(At the Lyric.)

With large audiences both matinee and night Miss Emma Bunting opened the week at the Lyric yesterday with that very pleasing comedy drama, "Sweet Clover."

The scene of the play is laid in New England, and the folk in the play are typical of those to be found in any New England village. There is a splendid plot, with a number of exciting scenes, and the humor is of the best. Miss Bunting could have made no better selection.

The scenery of the four acts is handsome and elaborate, and the stage settings are equal to any ever seen upon the stage at the Lyric.

Each meber of the company has a splendid part and appears to unusually good advantage. George Whitaker, the popular leading man, has one of the best roles he has yet attempted, and portrays the part with unusual skill.

"The Sign of the Rose."
(At The Atlanta.)

In selecting George Beban in his new play, "The Sign of the Rose," as the initial attraction of the new Atlanta Theater, Klaw & Erlanger have immediately focussed attention upon that star. Many inquiries have naturally followed as to the personality of Mr. Beban and his relative position in the world of present-day theatricals.

Although Mr. Beban is not known here by contact with local theater-goers he has been a prominent figure upon the stage for years, and it is easy to give a line upon his career. Beban is a western product. He journeyed into New York from San Francisco and made an early hit for his work as an eccentric comedian. Early he developed a keen appreciation for excitable character studies and among the best of these types were his ridiculously funny stag Frenchmen. He became so closely identified with that line of work that French character types became known as Beban parts and for nearly eight years he created such studies. Most of that time he was either with Lew Fields or George M. Cohan in their big musical comedy productions. All this time he kept trying to get managers to give him a chance at serious characters but was rebuffed and told to stick to the line of work in which he was so successful. He finally hit upon the idea of writing his own play in the hope of demonstrating his larger talent for character drawing. This was the inspiration of "The Sign of the Rose."

MET ONLY THREE DAYS AGO, NOW THEY ARE MAN AND WIFE

After a courtship which lasted only three days, during which time each decided that life without the other would be not worth the living, Lawrence D. Green and Miss Evelyn Freeman were married at Wesley Memorial church last night in the presence of a few chance witnesses.

Mr. Green and Miss Freeman met for the first time Friday at a boarding house on Ivy street. It was a case of love at first sight, and the courtship, unlike the proverbial course of true love, ran smoothly as a rubber-tired auto on asphalt, and Monday night the two young people fared forth in search of a preacher. They boarded an Edgewood avenue car, and on the way out saw Rev. Frank Siler on an incoming car. Hastily they explained the situation, and Mr. Siler decided to accompany them to his church. The groom was not presonally acquainted with Mr. Siler, but at the church it developed that he knew several of Mr. Green's relatives quite well.

The happy couple were married in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Smythe and Robert Homer Smythe, Jr., of College Park, and Richard E. Manston, after which they went to their temporary home on Ivy street.

Mr. Green is employed by Durham Brothers, jewelers, and is a well-known young business man. The bride is originally from Newnan, Ga., and is the daughter of the late J. D. Freeman.

DAILY FASHION HINTS

AN ODD AND STRIKING THEATER COAT FROM PARIS.

One of the most interesting developments of the new East Indian craze in dress, has been this coat, worn by a young French actress, famous for her daring costumes, at Monte Carlo earlier in the season. The coat is built of crepe de chine in a dull gold color, and the embroidery, which is symbolical in motif, is done with tiny steel beads. The cord, which emphasizes the high waistline, is of dull gold cord, and the fringe trimming edging coat and sleeves is made of wooden balls wound with bright yellow silk, rosettes of this yellow silk being caught to the gold-toned coat near the neck.

A Home Recipe For Removing Wrinkles

(From Woman's National Journal.)

Who will blame the modern woman for trying to look as young and attractive as she reasonably can? Why should she be placed at a disadvantage in numerous ways by wearing wrinkles, if she can avoid these hateful marks of advancing age?

Few women, however, know what to do to effectually rid themselves of wrinkles or sagginess. None of the advertised preparations is satisfactory and most of them are very expensive. But a very simple and harmless home remedy, which any woman can make, will work wonders where all the patent preparations fail.

Buy an ounce of powdered saxolite at any drug store. Dissolve the whole ounce in a half pint of witch hazel and use it as a wash lotion. The results are practically instantaneous. Marked improvement is noticed immediately after the very first trial. Wrinkles and sagging are corrected and the face feels so refreshed and smug-like.

GRAFT RUNS RIOT IN OHIO ASSEMBLY

Sickening Tale of Bribery Told by Diegle.

Confession of Sergeant-at-Arms Made to Newspaper Reporter—Trail of Graft Leads to Doors of Many Members of State Assembly.

Cleveland, Ohio, September 4.—"Rodney J. Diegle has broken his silence," says today's Plain Dealer in a lengthy story, relating that Diegle has made a confession to a member of its staff. The Plain Dealer's story mentions no names. The confession is being reserved for the Franklin county grand jury at Columbus.

The story says in part:

"The convicted sergeant-at-arms of the Ohio senate has told his story, sickening in many of its details, of a trail of bribery and graft, which leads to the doors of many members of the Ohio general assembly. It is a story extending from the office and place of business of the successful lawyer, manufacturer and merchant, to the low dives and brothels of Columbus. It will wreck reputations and bring sorrow to many homes, even should the lobbyists and members in question, by hook or crook, escape long sentences in state's prison. It is a story of professional men of standing in Ohio, representatives of business interests and politicians attempting to arouse the spirit of venality in the breasts of legislators.

"In his recital Diegel gives names both of members and lobbyists and particularizes on incidents.

"The legislation, on account of which these methods were employed, is given in the Diegle story."

No Immunity For Diegle.

Columbus, Ohio, September 4.—"Diegle will receive no immunity unless he tells all. We are determined to get at the inside of these matters and unless he does as he promised and relates everything he knows regarding bribery in the Ohio state legislature he will get no clemency."

This statement was made today by Prosecuting Attorney E. C. Turner, of Franklin county.

DEATH TO SUAREZ CRY THE PEOPLE

Antagonism Against Madero's Running Mate Assumes Serious Proportions.

Mexico City, Mexico, September 4.—"Viva Madero; Muera Pino Suarez" (Death to Pino Suarez), the shouts with which people in Puebla greeted a speech by Francisco I. Madero today, indicate the manner in which the candidacy of Jose Pino Suarez for the vice presidency has been received in many parts of the republic. In a few quarters has the insurgent movement been directed against the progressive nominee for the presidency, but the spirit of antagonism toward Pino Suarez has been manifested by means of public statements and editorials throughout the republic.

Even friends of Madero express a lively fear that the selection of Pino Suarez and the riot of yesterday, in which Bernardo Reyes, the opposition candidate for the presidency, was stoned, may have the effect of lessening the chances of Madero for election.

Regarding the riot, a number of the dailies of the capital condemn it, asking in derision: "What sort of a democracy is this which we have gained?"

HOW SHE SAVED HER LIFE.

Conditions Are Favorable for Continued Precipitation.

Showers may be expected again today.

The weatherman announced yesterday that conditions continue favorable for further precipitation in Atlanta and vicinity. The temperature was fairly pleasant, with the mercury registering at 8 degrees.

"Some parade, that, of Labor day," said the Gopher, "one of the best I ever saw. I am a good notion to work a little bit some time and qualify so I can get in next year. Say, did you see that big gink marching with a parasol over his head about the size of a mushroom (the parasol, I mean.) I'll bet he took that away from some little child, the robber. He ought to be ashamed of himself."

CHANGING HER FACE

(From the Household Friend.)

Any woman not satisfied with her complexion can remove it and have a new one. The thin veil of stifling half-dead cuticle is an encumbrance and should be removed to give the fresh, vigorous young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe.

There's a simple old-fashioned home remedy which will always do the work. Get an ounce of pure mercolized wax from your druggist and apply it at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. The mercolide will gently absorb all the lifeless skin and leave a healthy and beautiful complexion, as fresh as a child's. Naturally it takes with it all such facial blemishes as freckles, tan, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, pimples, etc. It is pleasant to use, effective and economical. The face so treated immediately looks years younger.

BEATTIE GRILLED BY PROSECUTION

bar sat his brother Douglas and his white haired father, the latter at times covering his wrinkled countenance with a fan as some particularly loathsome details were recited by the son. But when the end of the day came, the father as usual bent over the prisoner affectionately and kissed him.

Beattie answered questions in an even voice and without emotion. Except for the nervous fingering of his handkerchief and the characteristic vibration of the muscles in his cheek, he sat like a school boy, expressionless, as he narrated the story of the crime. In no essential did the prisoner's version of the affair today differ from that which he gave at the coroner's inquest or that to which the defense, through its witnesses, hitherto has clung. The direct examination lasted only two and a half hours, while the cross-examination had proceeded three and a half hours when court adjourned for the day.

Points of Prosecution.

The prosecution, in its cross-examination, gave particular attention, however, to two points in the previous testimony of the prisoner.

If the accused had on the night of the murder a light fastened to the rear of the machine, why could he not see the fleeing highwayman to the rear of the car, or if the prisoner had grappled with the assassin and succeeded in wrestling the shotgun from him, failing to the ground at the same time upon the sudden release of the weapon from the highwayman's hands, why did the highwayman flee with Beattie at his feet on the ground?

These questions the prisoner evaded in his testimony, but tomorrow the prosecution will hammer away at them anew.

Denial after denial came from the lips of the prisoner as Prosecutor Wendenburg questioned him concerning the alleged purchase of a shotgun for him by his cousin, Paul Beattie, on the Saturday before the murder and the testimony of the latter as to the confession in which Henry is alleged to have exclaimed: "I wish to God I hadn't done it. I wouldn't do it again for a million dollars."

Denies Paul's Testimony.

Beattie disclaimed any connection with the purchase of the gun and any knowledge of the transfer of any gun by Paul ti him, declaring he never saw the fatal shotgun until the night it was raised by the highwayman on the Midlothian turnpike. Little of Paul's testimony concerning his metings with him did he admit. He said he was with his cousin only on the Saturday night before the murder and merely carried him home in his car from the Beattie store in South Richmond. He emphatically denied that he had been with Paul at any time within the week or fortnight previous and on this declaration the prosecution tomorrow will linger particularly, as tonight Detective Scherer declared that four witnesses were to be produced who saw Henry and Paul together also on the Thursday night before the murder.

Says Wife Suggested Ride.

That it was his wife who suggested the ride on the Midlothian turnpike after they were nearing the Owen home on their return from the drug store, where they went to get a prescription filled, was the statement of the prisoner as to the occasion for the ill-fated ride, but when on cross-examination, Prosecutor Wendenburg asked the accused if he would have taken his wife riding even if she had not suggested "the spin," Beattie admitted that his "mind was not made up at the time."

The influence of Beulah Binford on the case was conspicuous throughout the day.

Counsel for the defense twitted the prosecution for not putting the girl on the witness stand, since the state had subpoenaed. Attorney Harry M. Smith, Jr., of the defense, said that he never had had any opportunity of even speaking with her, as she was kept in communicado in jail, whereat Judge Watson, in surprise, declared that if such had been the case, it was wrong, and hereafter counsel for the defense would have every opportunity to confer with the girl.

"Why don't you put her on the stand, then?" suggested Prosecutor Wendenburg to Mr. Smith.

"Oh, I wash my hands of her. I don't want to have anything to do with her."

At this point Judge Watson interjected that if neither side intended calling the woman to the witness stand he wanted to "turn her loose."

Binford Girl Will Testify.

The prosecution intimated, however, that it would call the girl, and when rebuttal begins tomorrow or the next day it is practically certain that the Binford girl will be called particularly to corroborate the testimony of Paul Beattie as to certain messages which he says Henry asked him to deliver to her.

The prisoner deprecated the idea that he in any way loved the girl. The prosecution, however, insisted that in the week before the murder three of Beattie's evenings had been given to the Binford girl as well as the night before the homicide, all of which the prisoner admitted as true. The prosecution continued to contend that the prisoner sat on his wife's body to conceal it on his flying trip to the Owen home.

Beattie donned the bloody clothes without the slightest change in his manner. With the same equanimity he handled the shotgun.

For nearly two hours and a half Beattie was in the witness chair, and when court recessed for luncheon the direct examination of the prisoner, closing the case for the defense, was concluded.

Beattie, Sr., Testifies.

On the reconvening of court, counsel for the defense recalled Henry C. Beattie, Sr., the father of the accused.

"There's one question I omitted to ask when you were on the stand before," said Smith. "Paul Beattie said he came to your house on the Wednesday night of the alleged confession and stayed about a half-hour from about a quarter of eight to a quarter after eight. Did you make any remarks to Paul Beattie concerning the probable arrest of Henry?"

"I did not. I had no idea in the world at that hour of the arrest. Ten o'clock Thursday night was the first intimation I had of the arrest."

"Now, Paul said he and Henry were on a porch. What kind of a porch was it?"

"It runs on three sides and is all connected. The whole house and porch were full of people."

The witness was excused.

Cross-Examination Begins.

When court reconvened at 2:55 o'clock the defense declared it rested its case on the testimony submitted.

The cross-examination of Beattie then began.

The prosecution devoted the first hour or more of cross-examination to a searching inquiry into Beattie's relations with Beulah Binford. The prisoner continued frankly to admit his intimacy, but insisted that he could not have had any love for a girl who was so notoriously bad.

Asked to Waive Right.

"Mr. Beattie," said Prosecutor Wendenburg, "you have been asked by your counsel several questions as to what your testimony was before the coroner. Under the statutes of Virginia that evidence before the coroner cannot be used against yourself. Now, do you waive your right and say that the commonwealth may use the evidence given by you before the coroner?"

Counsel for the defense objected that the question should not be asked before the jury. The court sustained this view and asked the jury to disregard the prosecution's proposition "and not to draw any unfavorable inferences therefrom."

"Now, I understand, Mr. Beattie," resumed Prosecutor Wendenburg, "that you met Beulah Binford in August, 1907. When did your illicit relations with her begin?"

"About two weeks after I had met her."

"And continued how long?"

"Until she went to Washington in the fall of 1908."

"When did you send her to school?"

"The same fall. Can I explain?"

"Yes."

"Her people were going to send her to school. They all thought I'd help them, which I did, not to give her an education for my benefit, but to get her out of the way."

"What do you mean by 'to get her out of the way?'"

"I mean that I wasn't educating her because I liked her."

"Couldn't you get her away in any other way?" insisted Mr. Wendenburg. "Did she have such influence over you that you had to send her away?"

"No."

"Then your relations continued for sometime when she was 14 years old?"

"Yes."

"Wasn't that a violation of the law concerning young girls?"

The prisoner did not answer and his counsel objected that he was on trial for only one offense. The court permitted the prisoner to say that he did not know his action was against the law, "if the girl ran about town."

"Now, when the child was born it was named after you, wasn't it?"

Child Named for Beattie.

"Yes, it was named Henry Clay. I was in the store when the funeral director had the bill and I told him the child had been adopted by Mrs. Trout and he said she wouldn't pay it, but would turn it over to the city as my child and I naturally didn't want that to happen and paid the bill, thinking that would be the last of it."

"Did you write any letter to Mrs. Binford to sign some papers in reference to the adoption of this child, and that if she did not you would wash your hands of the matter?"

"I can't remember writing it. I thought I had washed my hands of the matter when I was in the lawyer's office."

The prosecutor produced the letter and asked:

"Did you write that letter?"

"I did."

Mr. Wendenburg read:

"Mrs. Binford—You can sign the enclosed with your name and address. Please do so at once, as this is the last time I will monkey with this business. When you have an answer call me up. —Henry."

"Did that letter refer to the adoption of the child?"

"From the contents of the letter, I think it does, but when the child was born there was a paper to sign, and it may have been in reference to that."

"Did you have any other transactions with Mrs. Binford about the child?"

"I don't think so."

"After the child died, Beulah Binford went away?"

"Yes, after staying at a disreputable house, she did."

"Then she was to join her husband, the baseball player, Fisher?"

"I heard so."

"Didn't you know, when you were in Norfolk, that she was married?"

"She told me so."

"The night she arrived in Richmond you joined her, did you not?"

Revealed Relations With Girl.

"We went out riding and had a few drinks, and then Billy Sampson and I went home."

"That was the renewal of your relations with her?"

"Yes."

"Weren't your nights to see her every Thursday and Saturday?"

"No. Those were the nights I went out ever since I was married."

"Will you deny being with Beulah toward the end of Monday, Thursday and Saturday?"

"The week before the homicide I saw her those three nights."

"So three nights belonged to Beulah?"

"I had been with her, but I don't know as they belonged to her."

"On Thursday preceding the homicide when did you join her?"

"About a quarter to 9."

"How long did you remain with her?"

"Until 1 o'clock, I reckon."

"Where did you go that night?"

"Went out riding."

"Took her to the country?"

"Yes."

The white-haired father of the prisoner covered his face with a palm leaf fan through this portion of the testimony.

The prisoner denied he either saw or telephoned Paul Beattie on Thursday night, and said he might have seen Paul the week preceding.

Didn't Phone Paul.

"Did you ever telephone to Paul at any time to meet you at Short and Main streets?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever go to McEvoy's barroom?"

"No, I don't know where McEvoy's barroom is. I'm pretty certain that on Saturday night, which was the only night I was with him, I didn't take any drink with him."

"Didn't you go to the telephone that night?"

"Yes. I tried to get a number, but did not."

"Whose number was it?"

"Beulah Binford's."

"Didn't you say over the telephone 'meet me at Short and Main streets in a few minutes?'"

"No, sir."

Photographers Ordered Away.

Sheriff Gill at this point was ordered by Judge Watson to have the photographers at the window move away, as counsel for the defense protested "that the ordeal of the prisoner was sufficient" without the activity of the camera men.

"Why were you solicitous that your friends shouldn't know about the Binford girl?"

"I didn't want them to know it. No man would."

"Paul has testified that after you left McEvoy's on Thursday you took him home."

"I didn't see him any night except Saturday."

"Then your denial covers all that Paul has testified to as to what you did that Thursday night?"

"Yes.

"Now, if John Joseph, owner of the place on the corner of Short and Main and John Britton, with him, would testify that they saw you on Thursday night before the murder, and if a lady, Mrs. Nolan, who was sitting on the porch that night, would testify that you came to Paul's home on Thursday night, and Mrs. Beattie would testify likewise, would you still say that you were not with Paul that night?"

"Yes, sir. There was only one night I could have possibly been in McEvoy's, and that was Saturday night, and I'm pretty sure I wasn't there then."

"That's the night Paul said you gave him instructions about the gun, isn't it?"

"So he said."

"On Saturday night, Paul came to your store?"

"About 7 or 8 o'clock. I didn't notice him. I just happened to see him there."

"What time did you leave the store that night?"

"About 10:20 or 10:25 o'clock."

"Do you deny leaving a Mr. Fortune, to whom you were showing a pair of shoes for his child, to speak to Paul?"

"Yes."

Denies Talking to Paul.

"Do you deny talking to Paul then?"

"Yes."

"After the store closed, Paul was waiting for you, wasn't he?"

"I was lighting the lights on my car when he came up. He asked me where I was going, and I said into Richmond, and he said he was going there, so I took him along."

"Had you ever before taken Paul or his wife out riding?"

"No."

"Then you took him from Manchester to Richmond that night?"

"Yes."

"Didn't Paul carry packages or messages to Beulah Binford for you?"

"About three years ago I sent a package by him."

"What was in it?"

"I don't remember."

"You never asked Paul to carry any messages either?"

"No."

"Didn't Paul come often to the store?"

"Yes, and we used to watch him, too."

"You are trying to blacken Paul as much as you can, aren't you?"

"No, I'm telling the truth and can prove it by every clerk in our store."

"When you took Paul home on Saturday night, what did you say about Beulah Binford?"

"I told him to call up Beulah Binford under the name of Mrs. Fisher and tell her I would be there in a few minutes."

Beulah's Diary.

"Did you ever see Beulah's diary that she began to keep after she got back to Richmond."

"I believe I did. I think I glanced through it."

"Where were you then?"

"I don't know where I was."

member when he read the diary.

The prosecution produced the diary.

"Were you in love with Beulah from the time she came from Norfolk until the time of the death of your wife?"

"I never loved her."

"Was she in love with you?"

"I can't speak for her."

"Did'nt she write so in her diary?"

"I don't know; she may have."

"It was kept by her with reference to her feeling for you wasn't it?"

"I don't know."

"Did the diary give expression of her feelings toward you?"

"I really don't know what is in there."

"Have you forgotten?"

"Yes, sir."

Regarding the admissibility of the diary the court ruled that it should come "from the sworn lips of Beulah Binford."

Diary Ruled Out.

"I do not think that book is testimony," concluded Judge Watson, who cut off the prosecution from proceeding further with questions regarding the diary.

"What was Beulah's pet names for you when she addressed you?"

"Henry."

"Did she call you 'my darling Henry'?"

"No, sir, not in a personal conversation."

Mr. Wendenburg produced the "dear kid" letter concerning the purchase of furniture for the Binford girl, enclosing a $10 check and the witness admitted writing it. It was dated July 14, or four days before the murder.

"Didn't you, on Thursday, after the homicide, deny to Detective Scherer that you had sent Beulah any money or aided her in any way?"

"Yes."

"In the presence of Dr. Loving, Sergeant Wrenn and Detective Wiltshire, didn't Detective Scherer say you concerning the money?"

"If he had I would have told him. I told all I knew."

"In your 'dear kid' letter you asked Beulah to get an itemized bill of the furniture and what must be paid each week?"

"Yes."

"Why was that?"

"I thought she might say the bill was larger than it was."

Oceans of Love.

"'With oceans of love,' what do you mean by that?"

"Nothing. 'Just gush' or taffy."

"'Brimming with kisses;' what do you mean?"

"Well, few men are with a girl of that kind and don't kiss her. It's not a cold-blooded act."

"The fact is that on July 14 you were making preparations for an independent home for her?"

"I wasn't making any more preparations for her than the rest of them. She couldn't stay with her sister or mother. Her sister wouldn't walk down the main street with her."

"Didn't you take Beulah and her sister to her uncle's in your machine just before her uncle died?"

"Yes, but that was at night, when no one could see."

"At a quarter after 10 o'clock on the Saturday night before the murder it was testified by Paul that he gave you the gun. Now if you took Paul home at 10:20 you must have had the gun then?"

"I didn't get any gun from him"

"What time did you get to Paul's house that night?"

"About a quarter to eleven."

"Didn't you pay for a long-distance message from your store for Billy Sampson; then go over to the telephone office to get them to take the name off?"

"Yes."

"Why was that?"

"I didn't want any name on the bill."

"The message was about preparations to go to Norfolk?"

"I don't remember."

Paid Girl's Doctor Bill.

The prisoner admitted that he had paid a physician's bill for Beulah Binford at her request.

The questioning shifted to the night of the tragedy.

"Where did the highwayman have the gun hid?"

"I don't know that he had it hid. I didn't see it until he raised the gun and pointed it at me."

"What reasons could that man have for murdering you or your wife."

"None that I know of. Might have been trying to scare me. He might have been drunk."

"Was he staggering?"

"He swerved in the road, but that wasn't necessarily because he was drunk."

No Provocation Given.

"There was no provocation given by you, was there?"

"None that I know of, unless I might have tried to prevent him from going across the road."

"How far away from you was the man?"

"I can't say. I know that I had to stop short not to hit him. If I hadn't stopped I would have been in some jail to answer for it."

"Don't you know that you are here today because you did not stop?"

Counsel for the defense objected and the court sustained the objection.

"When the man in front of your car made the threat, what did your wife say?"

"Nothing."

"You mean to say she didn't scream?"

"No."

"Even when the gun was pointed at her?"

"It wasn't pointed at her. I thought the man was pointing it at me, and when the car jerked forward and I bent down, he fired at her."

"What reason did he have to point it at you?"

"I thought he was trying to shoot above my head to scare me."

"What did the man say?"

"Nothing."

"What did he do?"

"He started to hit me with the gun when I got to the rear of the car."

"You say he was a powerful man?"

"He was a large man and probably powerful."

"You say you started towards the man. What for?"

"To fight, I reckon."

"Did you fight?"

"Well, as I said, I fell down after getting the gun and the man ran up the road."

"Then after you had captured the gun you first thought of your wife?"

"Yes."

Thought of Wife.

"Then after you got the gun you were satisfied and gave up all pursuit of the man?"

"I saw him going up the road and thought of my wife."

"After you had disarmed the man who murdered your wife you thought of your wife?"

"Yes."

The witness said he could not have reloaded the gun which he secured in time to shoot the highwayman.

"Did the man run?"

"Yes."

"Very fast?"

"I couldn't tell. I could only see a yard or so."

"So you fell to the ground after getting the gun, and the man saw you on the ground and yet ran?"

"Yes."

"Which part of the gun struck you on the nose?"

"The stock."

"Then as soon as you picked the gun up you put it into the rear of the car? Then you went to your wife, who needed no assistance?"

"We object," said Mr. Carter. Judge Watson ruled out the question because the witness had stated previously that he did not know that his wife was dead until Dr. Mercer told him at the Owen home.

"Didn't you tell Mr. Tom Owen when you reached the house that you were held up, and that your wife had been 'killed'?"

"I said she was 'shot.'"

The witness related how his wife fell between his back and the seat after being shot and Prosecutor Wendenburg produced the shirt worn by the prisoner that night and asked him why there was no blood between its shoulders on the back.

Dons Bloody Coat.

"I must have had my coat on," said Beattie.

"Well, put this coat on," said Mr. Wendenburg, and the accused man donned the brownish coat which he wore on the night of the murder.

"Turn your back to the jury," said the prosecuting attorney.

"No spots of blood are visible on the back of your coat. How do you account for that?"

"I didn't say she touched me."

"Do you mean to say the head didn't drop toward you?"

"I jumped out immediately and maybe this blood beside the pockets came from that."

"When you returned to the machine how did you place her?"

"I put her head on my seat and the lower part of her body against me and felt of her pulse and hollered for help."

"I want you to explain how you placed the body across the seats."

"Well, her head was in one seat and her body in the other and her feet must have been dangling outside the car. If you'll lay down here Mr. Wendenburg I'll show you just how it happened."

"Never mind. I won't take any chance."

Court adjourned at 6:35 o'clock to convene at 9:15 a. m.—earlier than usual.

Cure That Pimply Face!

A pimply face is a terrible handicap in business or social life. Nine times out of ten it can be traced to impure blood—caused by chronic bowel trouble or kidney disease. The poisons must be driven from the body either through the bowels or through the kidneys. A few doses of Obbac will convince the most skeptical that it will cure constipation and kidney trouble, and when the poisons of the body are properly eliminated there will be no more pimples, old sores, acne, rheumatism or the hundred and one troubles that follow in the train of impure blood or stagnant kidneys.

Obbac has cured the most dreaded of all blood diseases, and it must appear reasonable that such a powerful blood purifier can be used with splendid results in the treatment of lesser blood troubles such as pimples, acne, ulcers, old sores, rheumatism.

Obbac is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

DO AS THEY DO

Roosevelt "Tarlton took his big double-barrel and advised me to take mine, as the sun had just set and it was likely to be close work; but I shook my head, for the Winchester .405 is, at least for me personally, the 'medicine gun' for lions."
Ex-President Roosevelt in Scribner's Magazine.

Peary "Personally I always carry a Winchester rifle. On my last expedition I had a Model 1892 .44 caliber Carbine and Winchester cartridges, which I carried with me right to the North Pole. After I left the ship I depended upon it to bring down the fresh meat that we needed. Since 1888, both in Nicaragua and in the Arctic regions, I have always used the Winchester Repeaters. I desire nothing better than a Winchester Repeater." —Commander Robert E. Peary.

Whitney Harry Whitney, who spent fourteen months in the Arctic and hunted farther north and achieved greater success than any sportsman ever did before, wisely pinned his faith to the Red W combination. He says of it:
"I used two Winchesters: A Model '95 .30-40 and a .22 Automatic and Winchester cartridges with both. Neither the extreme cold nor rough handling affected their working or accuracy. They never failed me." —Harry Whitney.

WINCHESTER

GUNS AND AMMUNITION, THE RED W BRAND.

It's time to think about your hunting equipment. If you don't own a Winchester and haven't been using Winchester ammunition, it's time that you should. The superiority of this combination is well established. Winchester guns are made for all kinds of shooting and Winchester ammunition for all kinds of guns. No matter what you hunt there is a Winchester gun and cartridge suitable for your purpose. The example of such men of achievement as Roosevelt, Peary and Whitney, and thousands of others, is a good one to follow. They use Winchester guns and Winchester ammunition with satisfaction and success. So can you.

Drop into your dealer's before the season opens and renew your acquaintance with the old Winchester models and make friends with the new. When you go to your dealer don't say you want "a gun" or "some cartridges." Ask for a Winchester and Winchester make of ammunition.

BRILLIANT PLAYS ABOUND IN GAME

Sensational Work Marks Defeat of Crackers.

Practically Every Man in Pastime Does Somethnig Unusual Eveen to Umpire, Who Gives Decision That Presents Memphis With Battle.

By Dick Jemison.

Numerically speaking, more sensational features were crowded into the ten-inning game of ball between the Crackers and the Turtles Monday afternoon thah have ever been shown in a game at Ponce de Leon since it was founded.

True, there have been plays, perhaps, that were just as brilliant, cropping out from among a crowd of just ordinary plays, but in Monday's game the sensationally brilliant plays came in bunches.

The Turtles captured the contest 3 to 0, after ten innings of hard battling. They threatened in other innings, as did the Crackers, but either brilliant pitching or sensational fielding kept either side from putting the footprints of one of their clan on the rubber.

Probably the one play that eclipsed them all in brilliancy was pqerformed them all in brilliancy was performed ive Cub. The fleet-footed one saved the game in the ninth by probably the greatest running catch ever seen at Ponce de Leon.

Zim's Great Catch.

With two gone in the ninth, Swalm singled. Baerwald crashed a fierce one 30 feet over Jordan's head on a line. Watson could not get to it. Zimmerman sprinted with the crack of the bat. He and the ball came together when traveling at their fastest clip. For a brief second it looked like the sphere had won. Jumping high and sideways into the air Zimmerman stuck out his gloved hand and speared the ball, stumbling and nearly falling prostrate in the effort. An idea of the length of the swat can be arrived at when it is realized that Swalm was past third on his way home when Zimmerman nabbed the ball. And it was not one of those rainbow flies either. but one of those fierce line smashes.

First Baseman Miller, of the Turtles, contributed his gem in the first round, when he nailed a liner high in the air from the bat of ZZimmerman, stepping on the ba gfor a double play. Sykes scooped two up out of the dirt in great style after bad throws.

O'Dell robbed Altman of a bingle in the sith by shooting out his gloved hand close to the ground for a fierce grounder, nabbing it and making a great throw to first.

Crandall kept the Crackers from tallying in the fourth, when, with Burch on third, O'Dell slammed one on a line 10 feet high. Carl leaped high and speared it with one hand.

Burch Also Contributes.

Burch contributed a one-handed stab of a fierce bounder on the run in left and handled five hard flies in great style besides getting three good bingles.

Other plays by O'Dell, Crandall, Altman, McMurray and Adams were pretty, but alongside of the others were dimmed by their brilliance as not to show up as brightly as they would in an ordinary game.

Lest we forget. The work of the two twirlers, Britton and Dickson, was great. They hurled the game of their lives. Dickson kept the Crackers from hitting much until the last few innings, walle Britton was hit in spots all the way through.

In the very first inning Britton got into hot water, but he fanned the next two batters, with a man on second and third and only one out. He came out of a similar hole in the second and pitched strong in the pinches all the way until the tenth, when the game was broken up. Nine Turtles fell before his slants and he probably pitched the best game of his career, even if he did lose it.

At that, a questionable decision at third base in the tenth round proved to be the turning point in the game, for a single and an error with a single sent in the only scores of the day.

5,000 See Combat.

Fully 5,000 fans paid admission to witness the double-header that had been scheduled, but a deluge of rain shortly before game time and just at the time the first game was scheduled to start put an end to the first affray. The fans howled long about seeing only one game, but they stayed for the one and they were amply repaid for staying.

"The greatest game I have ever seen," said one fan coming back on the car. "I don't know when I enjoyed a game more," answered another. "But for that umpire," chimed in a third, and so on.

The crowd was strictly an Atlanta crowd, too, yelling their heads off on the brilliant plays the Crackers made and being partial with their applause on the good plays of the visitors.

Fatal Tenth Comes.

With one gone in the tenth, East got a free ticket. Miller singled. Gresham fanned and East pilfered third (according to the umpire, though it looked like O'Dell not only touched him, but sat on him, too). Altman crashed a single to center, scoring East and sending Miller to third. Zimmerman booted the ball and Miller came home, Altman going to third. Adams singled, scoring Altman.

O'Dell had been kicking so hard at Umpire Kellum's decisions at third that he was banished from the game, Howard taking his place.

The Crackers made a bid to tie it up in their half of the tenth. Jordan and Buemiller singled, McMurray forcing Buemiller at second. Britton beat out a hit in front of the plate, filling the sacks. Watson came to the bat, but was unable to get it by the pitcher, a double play ending the game.

BY WAY OF GOOD MORNING

SOME LIONS ARE ONLY BIG KITTENS AFTER ALL.

BEATING THE DUTCH IS EASY ON PAPER ONLY.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF

The great international wrestling match has been fought and there will be little vodka consumed in Dorpat, Russia, for several days to come. On the other hand, Humboldt, Iowa, is once more on the map and nobody gives a gosh ding whether a corn crop is made or not, b' gum!

Like every sporting event that is heralded as the scrap of the century and about which highbrow novelists write those fine old phrases, "abysmal brute" and "cave man," for a price that would buy enough winter clothes to keep a real newspaper man from freezing to death, the match was more or less of a fizzle.

People fought to pay fancy prices to see somebody torn limb from limb, and they saw the Russian Lion become as passive as a tabby cat and beheld the name of Dorpat changed to Doormat in about twenty minutes.

But there was one feature about the bout that should make the public feel repaid for witnessing the miserable exhibition. Every man who had a seat yesterday afternoon in Cominsky's ball lot knows that he saw a championship wrestling match that was absolutely on the level, and championship matches of this kind are few and far between.

Had Gotch lost, the suspicion would certainly have arisen that the result was framed. It would have meant thousands to the promoters had the Lion not turned kitten.

The public would have demanded a return scrap inasmuch as each man had a victory to his credit. The third match would have made the promoters roll in wealth, whatever wealth means, but the sport loving public would have been bunked again.

Gotch won so conclusively yesterday, however, that a return match is practically out of the question. It would draw about as well as a second battle between those eminent athletes who performed at Reno, the only day that divorce activities ceased in that Nevada metropolis.

One straight wrestling match has been decided. Maybe the people back of the sport will learn a lesson and have more of the same variety. If they do, there is a glimmer of hope for the mat game.

President Taft made the inhabitants of the Canal zone have a fine old Labor day. He proclaimed a holiday for the big ditch section and then issued a ukase to prevent the people from enjoying it. It was another case of the fond parent who permitted her dainty daughter to do an Annette Kellerman and then moved the water tank. There are three favorite pastimes for Latin-Americans and the population of the Canal zone is largely Latin in its origin. The first of these is cock-fighting, the second is bull-fighting, the third sleeping. The president's ukase prevented the first two sports and the presence of the American contingent and the accompanying baseball game put a crimp on the third sport. In a few days there will be a revolution on the zone. Deprive Central America of its chicken fights? Why the president had just as well try to enforce bathing in New Orleans.

Though double deckers were in order in the major leagues yesterday the results had little bearing on the windup of the pastiming in the big tent. In the National, the Cubs were downed once by the Cardinals, but came back in the afternoon. Just to make it a regular surprise party, the Boston Doves, with the aid of Hub Perdue, yanked a battle from the Giants. In the American, the Browns caused great gloom in Tigertown, but this was alleviated to an extent when Detroit heard that Washington had performed a similar office for Philadelphia.

In the Southern, luck again smiled on Charley Frank and the atmosphere around Birmingham is as heavy as the yearly tonnage of steel from that city. For, mirabile dictu (swiped), the Mobile Gulls defeated the bold Barons with George Rohe, hitherto unknown as a hurler, on the hill, and opposed to Bert Maxwell, mightiest of the mighty. All of which certainly fails to beat the Dutch.

Statements of Principals.

By Frank A. Gotch: "Honestly, I didn't think it would be so easy. Hackenschmidt gave me such a desperate struggle in our first meeting that I was prepared and expected to go through a hard, drawn out battle. The very minute we locked hands I felt confident that I would win, but I really did not think victory would come so quickly.

"Hackenschmidt did not display the nerve and strength he did in our first contest. He wasn't aggressive. He appeared to be afraid. When I saw that Hackenschmidt did not try to break down my defense or squirm out of holds, I became determined to end it as quickly as possible.

"I am sorry he laid his miserable showing to aninjured knee, for I wanted to make the victory a clean one. When I defeated him here three years ago it was charged that I won unfairly. Today I hoped Hackenschmidt would be at his best, for I wanted to prove that I was his master."

By George Hackenschmidt: "It was the cheapest world's championship ever won. I entered the contest with an injured knee and had my shoulders pinned to the mat for the first time in my wrestling career. I have no one to blame. I shouldn't have gone into the match, but I was advised that I could wrestle without further injuring my knee. I had scarcely got to work when Gotch began to torture me with his toe grips. I then realized that I was in no condition to continue. I am no quitter, neither do I desire to charge that I was not treated fairly.

"I am satisfied that my defeat was due entirely to the injury. I would like to meet Gotch again, for I feel deeper than words can tell the loss of this match. I did my best under the conditions. That is all I can say."

By Referee Smith: "Gotch won honestly and fairly. Hackenschmidt did not show his usual gameness or aggressiveness. I do not doubt that he was not in the best condition, for he looked worried and frightened when the match began. He begged Gotch to release his punishing toe hold and evidently was in great pain, when Gotch forced him to defeat.

"On cleverness alone Gotch should easily remain the champion for ten or more years. He is without doubt the most scientific man I have ever seen on the mat.

"His work on the first fall was marvelous and so fast that I could scarcely follow it myself, although I was within a few feet of the men.

"Gotch first faked a crotch hold. Then suddenly he secured a half-Nelson on Hackenschmidt. In the winking of an eye Gotch pivoted on Hackenschmidt's stomach, switched to a reverse body hold and had downed his man. It was the speediest shift I have ever seen on the mat.

"Hackenschmidt was in great pain during the period when Gotch held the toe on him. 'Don't hurt my toe,' he cried at first. But Gotch continued to put on the pressure. 'Don't break my leg,' was his next appeal.

"The end came a second later."

Chicago, September 4.—The geographical center of the wrestling world was more fortified at Humbolt, Iowa, the home of Frank Gotch, today.

Moreover, Referee Ed Smith, who proclaimed the world's champion victor of George Hackenschmidt, declared that for the next ten years there would be no shift of the wrestling capital, unless Gotch should choose to change his place of residence.

The Russian's showing was pitiful. The crowd decreed he had "quit," but the defeated challenger, through copious tears, averred he entered the arena with a wrenched knee, on which Gotch worked and speedily reduced him to a comparatively helpless state.

In any event it is certain the foreigner's nerves were on edge. He spent a sleepless night, and was pale when he crawled through the ropes. Dr. J. J. Davis, who examined both wrestlers before they went to the mat, declared while there might be something wrong with Hackenschmidt's knee, it was not evident during the examination.

Second Fall Quick.

While it took 14 minutes and 18 seconds to gain the first fall, the second required only 5 minutes and 32 seconds, which Hackenschmidt's friends assert, proved his knee was in bad condition.

Referee Smith is authority for the statement that when Gotch secured the terrible toe lock which won him the match, Hackenschmidt cried out: "Don't hurt my toe!" and a second later, "Don't break my leg," and fell with his shoulders to the mat, frothing at the mouth.

The first fall resulted from a reverse body hold after the men had struggled for 14:18 1-5. That toe hold for which Gotch is famous was responsible for the second fall. He clamped it upon the left foot of Hackenschmidt after the second fall had gone 5:32 1-5. Scarcely had he obtained the grip when Hackenschmidt acknowledged defeat.

Hackenschmidt's own statement, that it was the easiest world's championship ever won, tells the story of the bout. Gotch never was in serious difficulty. Neither was he forced to extend himself to win. The Iowan secured in all perhaps half a dozen dangerous holds on his antagonist.

Gotch Worried But Once.

Hackenschmidt had Gotch worried but once. During the first fall Hackenschmidt obtained a body hold on Gotch that brought him to the mat. The champion was on the canvas for but a few seconds. Then he was only down as far as his knees. Almost before the "Lion" realized that his opponent was in a dangerous predictament, Gotch had wriggled out of the hold and was bounding across the ring to safety.

For his defeat Hackenschmidt offers but the one excuse, that his left knee, which was injured in training two weeks ago, weakened under the pressure of the iron hands of Gotch, and it was useless to continue at the risk of being permanently injured. Hackenschmidt went into the ring with the member in a bandage.

Regardless of whether there be any merit of his claim that his knee was in bad shape, it cannot be denied that the challenger was in no state mentally to enter into a gruelling contest.

Hackenschmidt was unnerved before he entered the arena.

Whether it was from worry over his injured knee or his fretting over the match cannot be said. Like Jeffries, however, the Russian spent a sleepless night before the battle. His trainers tried every means to make him at ease. They had him a room with Johann Koch, a German, and one of Koch's chief duties was to sing songs of the fatherland to the Russian and try to make him feel at ease, but Hackenschmidt would not be calmed.

Pleads for Drugs.

After trying vainly for several hours to go to sleep, he arose and pleaded with his trainers to give him drugs that would make him rest. They refused to do this and Hackenschmidt retired to fret the night away.

In the minds of the vast crowd that saw the match there was no doubt as to which was the better wrestler. Gotch outpointed, outgeneralled and outgamed his opponent. The Iowan appeared faster than ever. His condition was perfect. He entered the ring filled with confidence and never once did he lose his nonchalance. At every stage of the bout he smiled as though he never had the slightest doubt as to the outcome.

On the other hand, Hackenschmidt seemed ill at ease. During the first fall he went about his work with his face set and anything but the glint of confidence in his eyes. After Gotch had gained the first fall what courage the Russian had appeared to have left him. With shoulders stooped and eyes downcast, he sat in his corner awaiting the starting signal.

Gotch's Wife Sees Victory.

Upon a box in the corner of the grandstand sat two women who did more, perhaps, to cheer Gotch on to victory than all the other persons in the assemblage. They were his old mother and his young bride. Frequently while in the thickest of the fray, Gotch found time to look toward the two women and smile. At the beginning of the ten minutes intermission between falls he did not go at once to his dressing room, but stood for a moment in his corner, smiling and waving at the two.

Hackenschmidt was broken hearted over the result of the bout.

In his dressing room for half an hour he sat in his wrestling garb, crying and refusing the proferred attentions and cheering words of his trainers.

"Go away," he said to all of them, "Leave me alone."

Then his broad chest would heave and the tears would flow unrestrained from his eyes.

Gotch only smiled after the match was over. He said the result was exactly as he thought it would be.

The story of the actual wrestling that was done is soon told. Time was called at 3:15 o'clock. The contestants immediately locked heads and began feeling each other out. For five minutes they tugged at each other's necks, wrists and arms but neither obtained a dangerous hold.

Russian Hits Mat.

It was Gotch who first turned attention to the legs. He made several fake passes at Hackenschmidt's knees before he finally obtained a knee hold at the end of eight and a half minutes. Once the Iowan's massive hands were fastened on Hackenschmidt's left leg the Russian went down. He struggled out o fthat and a subsequent hold of the same kind and then became the aggressor. At ten minutes Hackenschmidt secured a body hold and put Gotch to the mat, but he was down only an instant.

After fourten minutes of wrestling Gotch started Hackenschmidt downward with a knee hold, faked a crotch and then quickly worked the Russian into a half Nelson. They struck the mat together, head to head. Then Gotch pivoted on his opponent's stomash, clamped on a reverse body hold and the first fall was over.

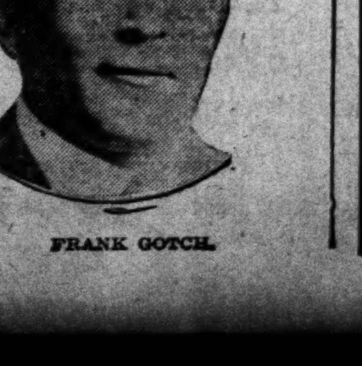

The first five minutes of the second fall was a replica of that period in the first, but Gotch suddenly reached down with his right hand, grasped Hackenschmidt's left ankle and unbalanced the "Lion." While Hackenschmidt was trying to regain his equilibrium Gotch struck the "Lion's" injured leg with his right knee and the Russian crumbled into a heap upon the canvas. Instantly Gotch was on him, his powerful right hand firmly locked upon the under man's left toe. Hackenschmidt screamed a couple of times, rolled over on his shoulders and gave up.

Humboldt Dances Joy.

Humboldt, Iowa, September 4.—Humbodlt literally danced its joy when the announcement of Frank Gotch's victory reached here this afternoon. A large crowd had gathered in the downtown streets and when the flash, "Gotch wins!" came over the wire at the telegraph office there was pandemonium among the 'home folks.'

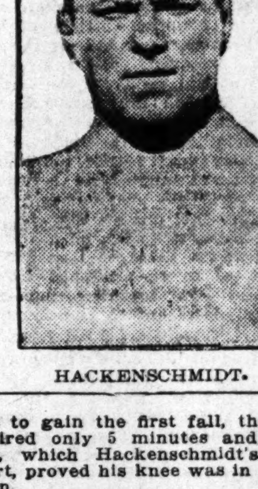

Gotch's neighbors shouted their delight with the news and many of them really danced as the significance of the second victory dawned upon them. A celebration was held tonight.

Giants 6, Doves 4; Doves 8, Giants 7.

New York, September 4.—By a tenth inning rally in which they scored three runs the Boston club split even with the locals in the Labor Day double-header.

Marquard pitched in invincible form for seven innings and with a lead of five runs crumbled to pieces in the eighth, when the visitors tied the score. With three men on bases, Miller drove in the two tieing runs with a double, but Donlin was thrown out when he tried to score on the hit. A remarkable catch by Devore saved the game for Marquard in the ninth, but Boston's renewed bombardment in the tenth for five hits netted three runs. New York came back with a great rally, scoring two runs and had three on bases when Myers lined a hot drive at Ingerton for the third out.

AFTERNOON GAMES.

Pels and Billies Split.

New Orleans, La., September 4.—New Orleans could do no more today than hold her own in the close pennant fight with two rivals, breaking even with Montgomery in a double-header. Klawitter pitched splendid ball in the first and won 3 to 1. A feature of this game was Manush's home run. The second game soon developed into a burlesque, in which the league leaders were humiliated. Breitenstein started pitching and went through four innings, but pitching was batted hard and errors and dumb playing behind him contributed to the large score run up by the visitors. Breitenstein was relieved after the fourth by Sprinkle, who was also easy for the visitors. Bagby pitched a good game.

WHY NOT FEED MORE COTTON SEED MEAL?

"If two pounds of corn in the daily ration of the work stock of Georgia were to be replaced by two pounds of Cotton Seed Meal, not only would the entire supply of Cotton Seed Meal produced in Georgia, each season be consumed, but the work stock would be improved in health and a great saving secured to their owners through the less expensive feed and a better condition of their work stock help."

WHICH IS BETTER?

TO BUY a house already built, paying a good profit to the one who built it, and has been living in it long enough to enjoy all its freshness, and now sells it to you when it needs repairs; or to build your own home, planned to suit you, enjoying its newness, and make the profit yourself, if you should want to sell? Honestly, which is more sensible? If you want a "hand-me-down" house you can get it, for there are plenty of 'em for sale. But if you want a home, planned to meet your ideas of comfort, see us. That's our business. We build HOMES, not houses.

WITH THE AMATEURS.

By Walter Reynolds, Jr.

CARTERSVILLE WINS.

Cartersville, Ga., September 4.—(Special.)—Labor Day in Cartersville was celebrated by a red-hot game of baseball between the Cartersville Colts and the Georgia Railway & Electric Co., of Atlanta, who are here for three games. This is the only team that has met the Colts this season that was a match for them, having played the local boys once before this year, when each team won a game and tied on the third. About 1,000 people were in attendance. The features of the game were a fine catch by Center Fielder Wofford, of Cartersville, a fast double play by each team and the pitching of Verner, who allowed but one hit, striking out eight men. But for ragged support he would have pitched a no-hit shut-out. Martin also pitched a fine game, allowing but four hits and fanning ten men. The teams will play Tuesday and Wednesday.

Auburn's Schedule.

Auburn, Ala., September 4.—Auburn's schedule this year is as follows:
October 7—Mercer at Auburn.
October 14—Clemson at Clemson.
October 21—Texas A. and M. at Dallas.
October 28—Mississippi A. and M. at Birmingham.
November 4—Georgia Technical at Atlanta.
November 18—University of Texas at Austin.
November 27—University of Georgia at Savannah.
Coach Donahue says the prospects for his line are good, but for the back field are poor.

Kilbane Knocks Rivers Out.

Los Angeles, Cal., September 4.—With a hard right swing to the jaw, Johnny Kilbane, of Cleveland, knocked out Joe Rivers, of Los Angeles, in the sixteenth round of their scheduled twenty-round bout at Vernon today.

EBBETTS PAYS $53,350 FOR TEAM

New York, September 4.—(Special.) Having spent $53,350 in drawing for drafted players in Cincinnati, President Ebbets is back in town today bubbling over with his good luck in getting sixteen out of the thirty-two players in the draft at the recent meeting in Cincinnati.

"There were a few others I was after," said the Brooklyn boss today, "but I will have to wait a while, I suppose, and be contented with what I have already purchased. If anyone believes it is an easy task to get players, just let him go out and try it.

"I have been told by experts that the men I have secured are practically the cream of the players on the market. I will give any man $15,000 a year and all expenses if he can land me just three players who I can sell for $10,000 each to any other big club, and I promise not to sell them either. What I mean is, if a player is worth that amount to any other team he is surely worth that much to me.

"Just let him go out and try to get such players."

A complete list of the minors purchased and players drawn in the drafting of players by the Brooklyn club follows:

BURCH NOW IN MAGIC .300 CLASS

By getting three hits in the game with Memphis Monday, Al Burch, the fleet footed outergardener of the Crackers, jumped into the .300 class, now having an average of .301, having 25 hits in 83 times at bat.

This is the first time in many a day that an Atlanta player has been in the .300 class and Al is to be congratulated. The speed marvel at present is the best outfielder in the league.

AGOGAS TAKE BARACA TITLE

Monday afternoon at Grant Park the Agoga class of the Baptist Tabernacle defeated the Wesley Memorial club by the score of 13 to 2. This game was played to decide the championship of the Baraca League, for which these two clubs have been tied for several weeks past. The contest was played off last Saturday, when Wesley won, but was later thrown out on a protest. Monday's game, however, was a clean, hard-fought exhibition, and there is no chance whatever of it being protest. Monday's game, however, was for several innings, but when the Agogas began to draw ahead slowly but surely the Wesley team seemed to lose heart, and played in a listless manner. From then on until the close of the battle there was nothing to it but the goats.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Tigers Divide Bill.

St. Louis, September 4.—Detroit and St. Louis split a double-header here this afternoon, St. Louis bunching their hits in the fifth and sixth innings, while Pelty was safe in all but two and won the first game, 7 to 3. Detroit, one run behind in the seventh, bunched hits and with errors and a base on balls in the second game, scored six runs and took the lead, which they held until the end, winning 10 to 8. Cobb featured with the bat. The fielding of both teams was ragged.

A Matter of Medical Ethics

WHEN I failed to denounce a well-known Atlanta specialist a few days ago the gentleman who called on me for treatment was surprised. He fully expected that I would. All of which brings to mind medical ethics. Very often physicians and others who do not know me say unkind things about me. But to these I will say, eliminate the question of advertising in the newspapers and my ethics will compare favorably with the most ethical. It came about in this way. This gentleman called at my office one day when I was engaged, and left without waiting to see me. He took with him a couple of my monographs and then asked several doctors about me. They told him I was a quack, so he went to a well-known specialist and paid him $30 to begin with. This specialist, too, told him I was a quack and that he was fortunate in not being treated by me. After taking treatment with this specialist a while, he thought he was worse. So he quit and saw his family physician who told him the well-known specialist had infected him by the use of unclean instruments. In despair he came to me. The gentleman was suffering from stricture and I found the urethra very much irritated. I immediately assured the gentleman that his family physician was wrong and said the well-known specialist had not infected him by the use of unclean instruments; that he had simply tried to relieve the stricture too rapidly because the patient was impatient for a cure, and had in this manner caused an irritation. He reminded me that this specialist had said I was a quack, but I assured him that was no reason why I should do the specialist an injustice as the family physician had done. He was so impressed that he insisted on beginning treatment immediately and now he is getting along in good shape. So, I say I, too, have ideas about ethics. My conscience does not bother me when I am fair to my patients and everyone else. Having studied and specialized in diseases of men, nervous disorders and chronic diseases for more than a third of a century, I say I KNOW them and I know I can cure any case which CAN be cured. My office hours are 8 to 7; Sundays and holidays, 10 to 1. My monographs are free by mail in plain, sealed wrapper. Consultation free, too.

ADVERTISING TALKS.

if it were not for the telephone?

I learned the other day that the payroll of the New York Telephone Company alone is SIXTEEN MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR—over three hundred thousand dollars per week!

Add to this payroll that of every other telephone company in all communities, and imagine, if you can, just what it amounts to. If the telephone is used in the same proportion elsewhere that it is in New York—the pay roll must equal annually at least ten times sixteen million dollars.

While the telephone is a great idea, ITS USE HAS BEEN DEVELOPED BY PUBLICITY—by ADVERTISING—by LETTING PEOPLE KNOW WHY THEY SHOULD USE IT—by constantly emphasizing the desire of the telephone companies to render to the people good service.

EVEN THE THING THAT IS BEST KNOWN IN THE WORLD MUST BE EVERLASTINGLY ADVERTISED TO KEEP IT WELL KNOWN.

Don't ever forget that.

One would think it was not necessary to advertise the telephone, BUT IT IS. All the telephone companies everywhere may benefit, through LEGITIMATE DISPLAY ADVERTISEMENTS just as the New York Telephone Company has been thus benefited.

The year 1911 will probably show an increase of from 75,000 to 100,000 telephones in New York alone. The CONSTANT ADVERTISING of the company—just human interest talks about the use of the telephone—keeps alive the interest of the public, and every business, no matter how small, as well as every family, is impressed with its need.

Mr. Merchant, you think you are well known in your community. ARE YOU BETTER KNOWN THAN THE TELEPHONE? Don't think you can get along without advertising!

ILLINOIS CENTRAL FACING WALKOUT

essary steps to further their own interests.

President J. F. McCreery, of the federation, will meet with the nine international officers at the appointed time tomorrow, and a decision as to future action by unions will be reached. The union representatives intimated their plans already had been made.

The letter from President Markham, of the railroad company to Secretary Kramer, representing the international union officers, read as follows:

Markham's Letter.

"This is to acknowledge receipt of a communication signed by yourself and others.

"As has been repeatedly stated to yourself and associates present at meetings with Mr. Park and myself, there are in existence certain contracts between the Illinois Central railroad and seven of the organizations represented in the foregoing communication. Never before in the history of our dealings with labor organizations have we been asked to change contracts, except in the usual manner provided therein, viz: That the thirty days' formal notice which has always been regared as an essential feature of same be given. The required thirty days' notice not having been given in the matter provided in each of the different contracts, we regard them as still in effect, and must again decline to enter into negotiations with other agencies for the purpose of making changes therein."

Interest of Public Paramount.

"The paramount interest in this controversy is that of the shipping and traveling public, and being convinced that it is the ultimate purpose of the federation to consolidate railroad service employees into one organization, the management does not see that public opinion would sustain it in entering into an agreement which would place in the hands of one body the power to throttle the commerce of the country. Neither does it believe that the same public opinion will sustain any action that will result in disruption of the harmonious relations that have heretofore existed betwen the Illinois Central railroad and its employees.

"You will, of course, take whatever action you may consider necessary for the protection of your respective organizations, but if you will permit me to say it, it is my opinion that you can take no action that will afford any better protection than to advise them to live up to their contracts with this company, just as it has always lived up to its contracts with them. If any other course is pursued and trouble results, the responsibility is yours, not ours."

When a copy of the letter was shown to President McCreery he dictated the following statement:

McCreery's Statement.

"If this letter which has been shown to me tonight is authentic and correct, it is very evident to us that the officials of the Illinois Central are seeking to force the issue prematurely. That could be the only conclusion to draw from such a communication.

"I cannot say what will be done in regard to this letter. That matter is up to the international officers in Chicago, who have been holding the conferences with President Markham. They are to hold a meeting tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock."

The officials of the union claim they have twice give nthirty days' notice that they desired changes in the contract. President Markham, they say, was not satisfied with the form of the notices, inasmuch as they were not signed by the same men whose names appeared on the contract.

CHARTER ELECTION ON SEPTEMBER 27

Spratling and Councilmen McClelland, Nutting, Chambers, Stoy, Guess and Harrison.

The resolution is as follows:

Resolutions as Adopted.

Whereas, a committee of citizens favorable to the newly proposed commission charter for the city of Atlanta were called together and did convene after thorough advertising, in the ball room of the Kimball House on the —— day of August, 1911, and,

Whereas, after full, deliberate discussion of the validity of said newly commission charter, which has been misnamed a "Compromise Charter," on the question of whether certain clerical errors make it null and void, and after several of the leading attorneys of the city of Atlanta at said meeting declared it to be their opinion that the same was absolutely null and void, and if passed could not and would not be upheld in the courts, and,

Whereas, in answer to this full deliberation on the part of the citizens, then and there assembled, and in further answer to the declared opinions of leading attorneys, who were invited to advise the convention of citizens on the legality of said charter, a formal resolution, covering all the points at issue in detail, was presented in typewritten form by Mr. James R. Gray, editor of the Atlanta Journal, and,

Whereas, the care and method of such presentation showed clearly it had been thoughtfully considered by a committee of politicians who bespoke the sense of the convention of citizens that were called to ratify said resolution, and,

Whereas, said resolution emphatically stated that it was to be the sense of that convention of citizens that the newly proposed charter was not lawfully drawn, could not be upheld by courts, and that the election suggested therein for its ratification or rejection on the 27th day of September, 1911, would not be a lawful election, and that if this was true the election would be null and void, whatever the result, and,

Whereas, said resolutions were unanimously carried by that convention of citizens, and the action then and there taken was commended by both The Atlanta Constitution and The Atlanta Journal.

Whereas, more solutions than one have been brought into the consideration of this beclouded "compromise charter" since the deliberate action of this convention, that was assembled to consider the same, resulting in a reversal of opinion on the part of some, and the importuned emergency declarations of other members of the Atlanta bar, to the end that a common estimate, "compromise estimate," if you please, might be agreed upon which showed that the charter was not lawfully beclouded, as hitherto declared, but that it was a sound legal instrument that would stand the test of the courts; and,

Whereas, these same papers, to-wit: The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution, have reversed themselves, and declared as positively in favor of the new compromise agreement of a few selected lawyers in Atlanta, as they did agree to the unanimous verdict of their own convention of citizens, and have applied to the city council of Atlanta for the privilege of holding an election under this drawn commission charter, on the date fixed by same, to-wit, September 27, 1911.

Whereas, the legislature of Georgia, at its recent session, passed an act purporting to provide for the city of Atlanta a new charter after the same had been adopted by the people of the city in an election called by the act itself for the fourth Wednesday in September, 1911;

And, whereas, there is no discretion vested in this council as to the calling on or off of such election, and its only authority is to provide the necessary means and machinery for holding same, including the list of registered voters, the polling places, the printing of tickets and other preliminaries looking to the holding of same;

The Election Ordered.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the mayor and council, that no opinion as to the validity or constitutionality of the said act of the legislature is hereby expressed or intended to be expressed;

2. That it is the sense of this council that the city registrar allow all persons to register and enter their names on the list of qualified voters who would have been entitled to so register and have thier names so entered had the alleged error of "1911" instead of "1910" in the last section (154) of said act, not occurred, and that when such list of registered voters is so prepared that same be presented to such election as herein provided, this council for ratification as provided by law and custom.

3. That the clerk of council is hereby directed to procure suitable polling places in which to hold such election in the several wards of said city, and notify the several managers and clerks to hold same and where to report for same, and to provide tickets under direction of the city attorney to be used in such election, and to do all things needful for the proper and legal holding of said election as is the usual and proper course in such cases under the law.

4. That the sum of $500 is hereby appropriated from the fund for holding elections to defray the expenses of such election as is herein provided.

Wanted a Postponement.

When the resolution was read Mayor Pro Tem. Candler took the floor and introduced a resolution referring the whole matter to the following committee of lawyers in the council to make a report with the two city attorneys on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock: Councilmen Hatcher, Dent, Evins, McClelland and Chambers.

Alderman Candler said that he believed council should act with deliberation and dignity upon such an important matter. He declared that he was opposed to the new charter, as he believed it contained matters that were vicious.

"I feel confident," he stated, "that the proposed charter is unconstitutional and that the courts will so hold. I have seen two recent decisions of the supreme court of this state when they decided against just such a proposition as is now being put up to Atlanta."

Councilman Chambers spoke for the resolution and against Alderman Candler's substitute. He said that it was up to council to act as the law directed, and to act at once.

Says They Were Abused.

"Since this charter agitation," said Councilman Chambers, "the members of this body have been called tricksters, ring politicians, ward-heelers and every other name from that of murderer to that of a sneak thief. I think we have acted more like patriots than politicians, for the latter would have bootlicked and followed the current. This council has never been opposed to the people voting on the proposed charter. Those charter people are up a tree. They met and declared their charter void and now they are calling another meeting to declare that it is perfectly legal. All this talk about a mandamus is absurd, for any good lawyer knows that no such proceedings can exist. We have no discretion about calling the election and we must provide the ways and means for it to be held on September 27. There is no use in postponing just to get up a legal discussion."

Councilman McClelland said that if the resolutions were not dignified it was because it might be about time for council to answer some of the abuse which had been heaped upon it.

City Attorney Mayson was asked what he thought about the legality of the new charter and he replied:

"I have prepared no written opinion for council. I have stated my views in the newspapers and I haven't changed my opinion."

The vote on Alderman Candler's resolution to postpone action was as follows:

Vote on Postponement.

The Postpone—Candler, Kelley, Ragsdale, Warren, VanDyke, Hatcher, Andrews—7.

Not to Postpone—Johnson, Spratling, McClelland, Harrison, Warnock, Greer, Sisson, Nutting, Evins, Humphrey, Chambers, Stoy, Baker—13.

In the chair, Dent; absent, Grant, Maddox, Everett, Baskin, Guess, Johnston, Vaughan, Minor.

The resolution calling for the election was then unanimously adopted, council only voting, as there was an appropriation provided for.

At the meeting of the aldermanic board the action of council was concurred in by a vote of 5 to 2. Aldermen Candler and Warren voted against the resolution on the ground that it was too wordy and went into unnecessary details.

Mayor Winn will sign the paper this morning and this will end the official action calling for the election so far as the city is concerned.
